ADMIRERS MOB THAW

FREEDOM FOR THAW ON BAIL

By L. V. B. RUCKER,
Special Correspondent of International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 15.—One of the most remarkable demonstrations ever seen in the streets of New York occurred today after Justice Hendrick of the Supreme Court had postponed for twenty-four hours the rendering of a final decision as to the disposition of Harry K. Thaw, who was found sane by a jury yesterday afternoon.

Thaw was mobbed by a great crowd on his way from the county courthouse to the offices of Justice Hendrick in the Industrial Bank building and his clothes nearly torn off.

There was a great friendly demonstration toward the prisoner, the crowd cheering and try to clasp Thaw by the hand. The police officers in the street and the deputies accompanying Thaw had all they could do to pilot the prisoner through the mob.

It was decided today to admit Thaw to bail tomorrow whatever the justice's decision may be.

After the proceedings were over Thaw was detained in the judge's offices until the police could clear Chambers street so that the prisoner could be taken back to the Ludlow street jail. Through a misunderstanding Thaw was taken to the coun-

IDENTIFY WEST-END SUICIDE

The mystery of the auburn-haired woman who ended her own life and that of her little boy by gas at No. 67 Revere street, West End, Tuesday, was partly cleared today when the bodies were identified at North Grove street morgue as those of Mrs. Florence Emma Mason and seven-year-old Francis Dennis Mason of No. 53 Magoun street, North Cambridge.

The identification was made by Mrs. Mason's mother, Mrs. Margaret Smith, of the same address. Mrs. Mason was a seamstress and twenty-five years old.

Mrs. Smith told Medical Examiner Magrath that her daughter's husband is John Mason. She thought he lives in Brookline.

Mrs. Smith said:

"Florence went away Monday. She told me was going to take Francis on a vacation. I think the poor girl was demented. She had struggled hard to keep herself and Francis. She had not lived with her husband for several years, and she brooded over that."

The mother was asked why Mrs. Mason should have left a note asking that Mr. Powers be notified. Mr. Powers has reported that he could not explain the note.

The mother said she had heard Mrs. Mason mention such name, but she could not recall definitely. The notification to Mr. Powers remains to be explained.

Horrigan's Smile Never Deserts Him

John Horrigan was brought before Judge Palmer in the Roxbury District Court today with a smile on his face. While his case was being tried he continued to smile. Even when he received a sentence of a year in jail the smile remained on his face. He said:

"Only a year? I can do it easy on my ear. Why, I have just done a four-year term for robbery with a gun." He was still smiling when he was led away. Horrigan was captured by Officer Robert H. Connor in the act of breaking into the house of Patrick H. Reardon, No. 184 Blue Hill avenue.

2,200 CAR MEN ON STRIKE

PROVIDENCE, July 15.—The police authorities took emergency steps today to guard against trouble which might develop from the trolley strike which began at midnight. Over 2,200 of the Rhode Island Company's 2,400 employes are out.

Congressman George F. O'Shaunessy wired the Department of Labor at Washington today asking that, since the Rhode Island Company is being run by five federal trustees, appointed when the company was divorced from the New Haven Railroad, an investigation be immediately started by the department with a view to bringing about a strike settlement.

The Police Commissioners and Chief John A. Murray had every available man on duty today. The night detail was kept on the street. There are 350 patrolmen and 20 detectives covering the city from end to end. All police out on sick leave have been ordered to report for duty at once if their condition will permit. Vacation lists have been suspended for the present.

The only act of violence so far reported was the stoning of a Westminster street car by a small boy at Olneyville square. There were no passengers aboard. The stone crashed through one of the car windows. The boy fled.

It was reported at 10 o'clock that representatives of the company and strikers were to confer. But President A. E. Potter of the Rhode Island company, when asked about this, said: "Not that I know of."

National Organizer Fred Fay of the carmen's union, who is directing the strike, said: "No conference whatever."

OFFICIALS READY TO HELP.

Mayor Joseph E. Gainer and Governor R. Livingston Beeckman are preparing to offer their services to help settle the strike, but, in view of the determined stand assumed by each side, no definite hope was held out from either City Hall or the State House.

The Mayor said:

"It is unfortunate that, with both bodies willing to arbitrate, an amicable settlement cannot be reached."

The Mayor's expression of both sides being "willing to arbitrate" refers merely to the refusal of the union to accept any board of arbitration except one that the union named. After the union declined a board named by the company, the latter offered to have one of its arbiters and one of the union's arbiters choose a third, to constitute a full board, but the union refused this, too.

The directors of the company met

New Appeal for Becker Turned Down by Judge

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Another effort by Charles Becker, the former police lieutenant convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, has failed. Chief Justice Bartlett of the Court of Appeals has rejected an appeal from Becker's counsel to intervene in the condemned man's behalf.

Justice Bartlett made public the following letter sent by him to Attorney Harford T. Marshall, Becker's counsel:

"I received your letter of the tenth inst. relative to the Becker case.

"I am at a loss to understand why the facts therein should be communicated to me, inasmuch as neither the Court of Appeals nor any judge thereof has any jurisdiction in the matter. As an experienced practictioner of law, you must be aware that any facts pertinent to the exercise of executive clemency should be submitted to the Governor.

"The functions of the Court of Appeals are terminated by the affirmance of judgment of convictions and the denial of a motion for reargument."

Ex-Captain of Chelsea Police Killed by Train

The body of former Captain Fitz Roy Grover, recently retired from the Chelsea police department after forty years of service, was found lying beside the Boston & Maine tracks, near the Chelsea station, a few minutes after the passing of the Portland express at 10:09 today. Both legs were severed.

The discovery was made by James Bronson, gate-tender at the Arlington street crossing. Patrolmen Ferguson and Duggan identified the body.

Charles A. Williams told the police he saw Grover standing on the bridge over the tracks a few minutes before the express passed.

Police officials say that Captain Grover had been brooding over some real estate difficulty which he had recently.

Ex-Captain Grover was about sixty-nine years old. He lived at No. 337 Broadway, Chelsea.

TO PAY FOR DAMAGE TO LINER

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The German government has apologized for the attack on the Hawaiian-American steamer Nebraskan, torpedoed by a German submarine on the night of May 25 on her way to Delaware Breakwater from Liverpool, the State Department announced today.

Full compensation will be made for the damage sustained by American citizens in the injury to the vessel.

Ambassador Gerard has telegraphed the department that he has received the following memorandum from the German Foreign Office, admitting responsibility for the mysterious accident to the vessel which has been under investigation for the past seven weeks.

The German government received from newspaper reports the intelligence that the American steamer Nebraska had been damaged by a mine or torpedo on the southwest coast of Ireland. It, therefore, started a thorough investigation of the case without delay and from the result of the investigation it has become convinced that the damage to the Nebraska was caused by an attack by a submarine.

"NO NEUTRAL MARKINGS."

"On the evening of May 25 last the submarine met a steamer bound westward without a flag and with no neutral markings on her freeboard, about thirty-five miles west of Fastnet Rock. No appliance of any kind for the illuminaton of the flag or markings was to be seen. In the twilight, which had already set in, the name of the steamer was not visible from the submarine.

"Since the commander of the submarine was obliged to assume from his wide experience in the area of maritime war that only English steamers, and no neutral steamers traversed this war area without flag and markings, he attacked the vessel with a torpedo in the conviction that he had an enemy vessel before him. Some time after the shot the commander saw that the vessel had in the meantime hosited the American flag. As a consequence he, of course, refrained from any further attack.

"Since the vessel remained afloat he had no occasion to concern himself further with the boats which had been launched.

"UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT."

"It results from this without a doubt that the attack on the steamer Nebraskan was not meant for the American flag nor is it traceable to

PRZASNYSZ TAKEN BY THE GERMANS

By FREDERICK WERNER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, July 15.—German troops have captured Przasnysz, northern Poland, the War Office announced today. This town has been held by the Russians for several months, being situated at the extreme northern point of an angle on which the Czar's troops had been concentrated for the defence of Warsaw from an attack by troops from East Prussia.

Directly north of Warsaw, Przasnysz is less than 25 miles from Pultusk, one of the chief defences of the Polish capital.

Continued success for the Germans in both the Eats and West is announced in the official report from the general staff.

GERMANY APOLOGIZES IN NEBRASKAN CASE

any fault on the part of the commander of the German submarine, but is to be considered an unfortunate accident.

"The German government expresses its regret at the occurrence to the government of the United States of America and declares its readiness to make compensation for the damage thereby sustained by American citizens."

Secretary of State Lansing said today that the last sentence in the memorandum indicated that the German government would compensate the owners of the Nebraskan without taking the case to a prize court.

It is understood that Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, who is to call on Secretary Lansing today or tomorrow, will add his personal regret to those contained in the memorandum that an American vessel should have been attacked.

CABINET MEETING TUESDAY.

President Wilson will convene his Cabinet next Tuesday and lay his views on the German Lusitania note before it. He will not return to Washington before Monday.

The President's reply to the note and its proffered "concessions" will be dispatched soon after he returns to Washington.

While no draft of the American reply has yet been written it is believed that the President has made up his mind as to the general tenor. It is expected to be very short.

So far as surface indications are concerned, there is no sign of anxiety on the part of the President, and those in his confidence are optimistic over the prospects of a satisfactory solution of the difficulties between the United States and Germany.

Conferences between Secretary of State Lansing and Ambassador von Bernstorff, to be followed by a conference between President Wilson and the ambassador, are to be held before the reply to Germany's latest Lusitania note is dispatched.

The belief is growing here, based on admissions of high administration officials that the chief obstacle to an early settlement of the principles involved is Germany's refusal to disavow the sinking of the Lusitania and to offer some form of reparation for the loss of American lives.

Consequently, the view is taken that if Germany would go this far the administration would consider it had made substantial progress, and in its next communication would take an attitude less severe than that which it assumed in the other two notes.

It is believed that something to this effect will be communicated to the German ambassador before many days have passed with the expectation that he will use his influence with his government to bring about the desired results.

SUPPORTED BY HER ALLIES.

Cable dispatches from Berlin via Amsterdam today state that Germany has the full backing of Turkey and Austria in her negotiations with the United States, and that if the situation results in a break of relations between Washington and Berlin, Germany's allies will also terminate their relations with the United States.

Secretary of State Lansing today stated that Austria had made representations to the American ambassador at Vienna, objecting to the wholesale production of munitions of war for the enemies of Austria in plants established in the United States for that purpose. The Secretary said that he had not read the text of the representations and could not say whether they constituted a formal protest from the Austro-Hungarian government.

The statement made to Ambassador Penfield by the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs in a note dated June 29 was received in Washington just previous to the receipt here of Germany's latest note on the Lusitania case.

The State Department has no information leading it to believe that the German Foreign Office had any connection with this action upon the part of the Foreign Office at Vienna, although Berlin dispatches say that the protest was approved at the recent conference of ministers at Vienna.

Austria freely admits that the American government has shown every disposition to be neutral, but it declares that since Germany and Austria cannot buy war supplies from the United States owing to the blockade, the United States should preserve the spirit of neutrality by declining to permit the enemies of Austria and Germany to secure these supplies from America.

Secretary of State Lansing today flatly denied the published report that Ambassador Marye, accredited from the United States to the imperial court at Petrograd, had been recalled or was to be recalled or had resigned.

Come i Pifferi di Montagna

ROMA, 14 luglio.—Come i pifferi di montagna "che andarono per suonare e furono suonati," cosi' fini' ad un sottomarino austriaco che avrebbe voluto silurare una corazzata italiana.

La corazzata era protetta da una rete. Il sottomarino si incaglio' talmente in detta rete che gli fu difficile il salvarsi. L'equipaggio, temendo di soffocare stando a lungo sott'acqua, si arrese.

IL GEN. PORRO AFFERMA LA VITTORIA PER GLI ALLEATI.

Torino, 14 luglio.—Il gen. Porro, ritornando da una visita al fronte franco-inglese, ha espresso la sua piu' alta soddisfazione per i risultati del suo incontro con i Generali Joffre e French. Il Porro dice che "l'entusiasmo ed il valore delle truppe francesi, la determinazione e la calma di quelle inglesi e l'eroica persistenza dei Belgi, sono un'indicazione sicura della vittoria finale."

ROMA, 14 luglio.—500,000 soldati sono ingaggiati nella prima grande battaglia tra gli Italiani e gli Austriaci attorno a Gorizia, principale obiettivo e la chiave verso Trieste. Gli Italiani fanno dei lenti ma progressivi e continui progressi. Da ambo le parti le perdite sono gravi. La battaglia dura da quattro giorni. Gli Italiani fanno dei terribili attacchi contro la ferma resistenza dei nemici; i primi incoraggiati dalla presenza del Re che va colla sua automobile da un punto all'altro della linea di battaglia.

GLI AUSTRIACI CHIESERO LA PACE.

ROMA, 14 luglio.—Una notizia semi-ufficiale data al pubblico oggi, asserisce che quando l'intervento dell' Italia nel conflitto europeo apparve inevitabile, l'Austria-Ungheria prima cerco' di concludere una separata pace con la Serbia, e poscia tento' di ottenere un armistizio, allo scopo di ritirare le truppe che si trovano alla frontiera serba e scagliarle contro gli Italiani.

SANGUINOSA BATTAGLIA LUNGO TUTTO IL FRONTE.

COPENAGHEN, 14 luglio. — Telegramma da fonte austriaca. Gorizia ha sofferto grandemente dal fuoco dell'artiglieria italiana. Gli Italiani attaccano furiosamente determinati a prendere la posizione a tutti i costi. Tutto il fronte e' seminato di migliaia di cadavere. Le falde, i picchi delle montagne portano tracce della lotta orrenda, italiani e austriaci giacenti, dopo l'ultima carica, in grembo alla morte.

La nuova offensiva Italiana sembra si sia sviluppata nel Tirolo, nel Trentino e sulle Carniche.

Si dice che le perdite Italiane sino al presente siano state di 100,000 uomini, dei quali 17,000 prigionieri.

Il Regno del Terrore

Le autorita' austriache del Trentino ed Istria, appena scoppiata la guerra inaugurarono un tale governo di terrore che di 900,000 abitanti ben 700,000 furono costretti a lasciare i loro paesi e molti sono stati arrestati ed internati.

L'ultimo atto arbitrario e' stato l'arresto del sindaco di Levico, nel Trentino, citta' giacente sotto il tiro dei cannoni italiani, che la risparmiano. Poiche' dei gruppi di malviventi, alla dipendenza delle autorita' austriache, devastarono un albergo tenuto da un italiano, il Sindaco, non avendo potuto ottenere l'ausilio della forza pubblica, espresse la sua indignazione. Per tale sua condotta il Sindaco fu arrestato ed internato.

IL BOMBARDAMENTO DI GORIZIA.

MILANO, 14 luglio.—La squadra aerea italiana che attacco' Gorizia, lasciando cadere delle bombe da un'altezza di 2000 piedi, riusci felicemente allo scopo e ritorno' salva alla base.

U. S. May Have to Fight, Says Prof. Woolsey

NEW HAVEN, July 15.—The United States is bound to fight a nation which does not respect its right to have its vessels searched before its property or passengers are destroyed, declared Professor Theodore Salisbury Woolsey, head of the department of international law at Yale, and one of the most foremost world authorities on that subject.

The insistence on search is a religious duty and this is the key to the dispute with Germany, he asserted.

FRENCH ADMIT REVERSE IN ARGONNE

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, July 15.—Today's official report from the French War Office admits that the Germans have succeeded in making a new gain in the Argonne, but also announces the capture by French troops of a line of trenches in the district north of Arras.

The little forest of Beaurein, in the Argonne, has been the scene of desperate fighting for twenty-four hours. It was captured from the Germans by the French troops Wednesday, but last night the Germans regained their lost ground by a fierce counter attack.

The text of the official communique follows:

"There was considerable activity during the night in the region to the north of Arras. To the south of the Chateau de Carleul we captured a line of German trenches. Around Neuville St. Vaast and the 'Labyrinth' last night's conflicts were with grenades.

"In the Argonne the conflict was limited to the region situated to the west of the Argonne forest, where we made progress yesterday. To the north of the road from Servon, after a series of counter attacks, the Germans succeeded in regaining a foothold in the forest of Beaurein. In the rest of that sector the situation has undergone no modification.

"Between Fey-en-Haye and Le Pretre forest the enemy, making an attempt to sortie from his position, was immediately checked by our curtains of fire and the fire of our infantry."

500,000 in Great Italian Battle

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, July 15.—With 500,000 Austrian and Italian troops engaged in the first great battle of the war, the troops of King Victor Emmanuel are making slow but methodical progress toward Gorizia, their main objective and the key to Trieste.

Both sides are suffering immense casualties in the battle, which is now in its fourth day. The Italians are delivering terrific attacks against firm resistance, encouraged by the presence of the King, who travels back and forth on the battle front in his automobile.

The War Office states that the situation is unchanged, refusing to give out any details until the strategical aim of the conflict has been attained. Large Bavarian forces are reported to have joined the Austrians.

STRIKE TIES UP PROVIDENCE CAR LINES

TURN TO JITNEYS.

The tie-up of trolley traffic, which is so complete that only fifteen cars were being operated today on lines that usually require 624 cars, has given the shopping district a severe dent. Not only were one-third of the downtown employes absent, or very late but patronage was light. Suburban customers could not or would not come in for shopping.

Working people from the outlying parts of the city and from the suburbs who had to get to work if possible turned to the jitney service for transportation.

The jitneys, which have done a big business here before the strike, are flooded with passengers. Many strikers have borrowed or hired automobiles and are running a jitney service while laying off from their regular jobs.

The city is isolated, so far as trolley communication goes. The fifteen cars operated by inspectors and Mutual Aid men are run mainly on Elmwood avenue and Broad street, between the carbarn and the centre of the city.

Two cars are running between Market square and North Main street barn, half way to Pawtucket. This line usually requires sixty cars for the heavy Pawtucket traffic. All cars are run inside of city limits, so suburbanites have to walk or find some other vehicle than a trolley.

HARD ON SUBURBANITES.

The Mutual Aid men, who are running cars, comprise about fifty old employes who never joined the union. Most of them are gray-haired. Twenty-five of them are on car platforms today. All the inspectors are on cars, some running cars, others standing on platforms with the old Mutual Aid men who are acting as emergency motormen.

Ten thousand people jammed into Market square at 7 o'clock looking for transportation. The great bulk of these found some sort of jitney service.

The ordinance against overloading jitneys was broken so many times today that it will never be the same ordinance again. One four-seater whirled along Broad street with eleven passengers, mostly girls on their way to work.

Many owners of private automobiles picked up jitney fares all over the city. Some autoists, evidently not anxious to make money, carried working people downtown free.

The strike vote was taken at a meeting of 1500 men in Infantry Hall. The wage question is the fundamental point of difference and attempts to arbitrate the controversy failed.

BIG OFFENSIVE BY GERMANS IN WEST

By HERBERT TEMPLE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, July 15.—A gigantic offensive movement all along the line in the western theatre of war has been commenced by the Germans.

In West Flanders and the Argonne district of France the attacks of the Germans have been particularly violent. French and German official reports are conflicting, the Germans claiming important gains over a front nearly two miles long. While the French assert that the ground lost by the German Crown Prince's army has been recaptured in counter attacks, it is reported from northern France that a German offensive has developed on a big scale in the vicinity of Ypres, and it is possible the Teutonic forces are rallying for another drive toward Calais.

The attacks were repulsed by the French and British and the Germans followed up the infantry fighting with terrific bombardment with guns of big calibre.

Using a gun that has a range of 20 miles and hurls a projectile weighing a ton, the Germans bombarded Furnes, on the North Sea coast, causing heavy damage. Oost, Dunkirk and Nieuwport have also been shelled and half of Arras is in ruins from shell fire and a conflagration set by incendiary projectiles. The most of La Bassee has been destroyed. Fire which followed the German bombardment has burned part of Soissons. Rheims has again been shelled with 6½-inch and 10-inch projectiles.

In the sector of Arras, particularly around Souchez, the Germans have been delivering strong attacks with fresh forces, following a series of French attacks that lasted nine weeks.

Between La Bassee and Arras many lines of trenches were destroyed by the cyclonic fire of the French bombardment, but the front remained unbroken, for the Germans were able to fall back to other defensive works that had been prepared in advance.

Colonel Maude, military expert of the Standard, in an article today declares that German's aggregate war strength has now been reduced to 4,500,000 men.

ALLIED FLEETS SHELL TURK POSITIONS

By International News Service.

ATHENS, July 15.—Another determined assault by land and water on the Dardanelles is being made by the allied forces. After a series of desperate attacks on the Turkish position north of Krithia, the Anglo-French forces have captured two important Turkish positions located on the farther hills.

A British battleship, accompanied by four destroyers, shelled the Turkish positions at Gaba Tepeh successfully on Saturday, throwing 200 shells upon the trenches and batteries. The next day an allied cruiser, aided by torpedo boats and aeroplanes, effectively bombarded the Turks' position at Avi Burnu.

The allies, despite great losses, are advancing on the Turkish redoubts around Achi Baba.

4,000 TURKS TAKEN.

Four thousand Turkish prisoners were captured in this engagement.

One part of the allied fleet is now bombarding the southern end of the Gallipoli peninsula with a hot fire.

Several warships inside the Dardanelles are engaging the forts on the Asiatic side.

Accompanying the reports of reverses to the Turkish arms came insistent rumors that Turkey is weary of war.

It is declared that their supply of ammunition is running very low, and that there is no prospect for the supply being replenished because of Roumania's refusal to allow munitions to cross their borders.

REPORT TURKS WEAKEN.

The sentiment in Constantinople is declared to be strongly in favor of a separate peace.

The Germans, however, are seizing all premises and offices wherein any spark of the conflagration which would inevitably destroy them might start.

The Germans dominate the situation solely by force. A coup might save Turkey, but against this contingency the Germans have taken every precaution.

Held as Postoffice Thief.

Victor Matoon, alias Victor McGoon of Middleboro, charged with breaking and entering the postoffice at Barre Plains, July 9, and stealing $16 in stamps, was held in $1,000 bonds for trial July 22 in the United States District Court today.

DRIVE RUSSIANS BACK SOUTH OF MLAWA

PETROGRAD, July 15.—While the Russians on the Vistula-Bobr front in Northern Poland have repulsed the German infantry attacks, the Czar's troops have been compelled to fall back five miles southeast of Mlawa, under a terrific bombardment from heavy guns that destroyed their first line of trenches.

While admitting the retreat at the centre of the 140-mile front lying between the two rivers, officials of the War Office assert that the retirement was only along a front of half a mile, and that the counter cannonade of the Russian artillery was so effective that the Germans were unable to occupy the evacuated positions.

Twelve corps of German veterans, or 480,000 men, have been concentrated on the Northern Poland front, according to the latest reports from the Russian headquarters. Three of these corps are said to be part of the army that General von Mackensen had in Galicia.

THAW'S FATE WITH JUDGE; EXPECT DECISION, APPEAL, RELEASE ON BAIL TOMORROW

FRIENDLY CROWD MOBS "HARRY" AS HE LEAVES THE COURTHOUSE

ty court house at 11 o'clock this morning instead of to the Chambers of Justice Hendrick across the street.

WAITED FOR THAW.

Justice Hendrick, in the meantime was in his offices waiting for Thaw. In the justice's chambers were Edgar Bamberger, of the Attorney General's office A. I. Smith, of counsel for Thaw, and about twenty reporters, all waiting patiently for the prisoner.

Outside in Chambers street a crowd was rapidly gathering to get a glimpse of Thaw as he passed through. As the minutes speed by and Thaw did not put in an appearance the justice and the lawyers began to get nervous.

In the meantime Thaw, in the custody of Sheriff Grifenhagen and two deputies, were in the courthouse in the same room in which the prisoner had been having his sanity tested during the past fortnight.

Finally Justice Hendrick received word that Thaw was at the court house, and simultaneously Thaw received word that the justice was in his office waiting to conduct the proceedings there.

It was at this point that the petitions were presented to the justice, Mr. Smith asking for an order granting Thaw absolute freedom and Mr. Bamberger asking for an order sending Thaw back to Matteawan.

STARTED FOR OFFICE.

Sheriff Grifenhagen with his prisoner started for the justice's offices and Justice Hendrick, in order to render the proceedings formal, started for the court house in order to announce the adjournment there.

In front of the Industrial Bank building about 300 people had gathered. When they saw the judge they set up a shout and started across the street toward the courthouse. Just about the same time Thaw, with a crowd of about 400 or 500 people around him, emerged from the courthouse and started for the Industrial Bank building.

The two crowds joined forces in the middle of the street, forming a jam of humanity that resisted the efforts of the police to disperse it.

When Thaw was finally able to get into the bank building his clothing was awry, but he had a happy look upon his face for the attitude of the people had been markedly friendly.

It was sime time before the police could clear the streets, and it was nearly 12 o'clock before Thaw was started back to Ludlow Jail.

Justice Hendrick announced that he would render his decision at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, at which time Thaw will learn whether he is a free man or ill have to go back to Matteawan. Each side has the right of appeal.

EVELYN WISHES THAW LUCK ON HEARING VERDICT

LION MOUNTAIN, N. Y., July 15.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is sure Judge Hendrick will free her husband, wishes Harry luck, and thinks it will be a great advertisement for the San Francisco Fair if Harry goes there.

"But just wait," she said. "Watch Harry and see what happens."

Her first comment on the news of the verdict was:

"Harry Thaw may now hee-haw at the State of New York."

"I have tried my best from start to finish in this case to tell the truth, the whole bitter truth and nothing but the truth," said Mrs. Thaw. "In all the nine long years of litigation I have not only told the exact truth but have tried to conform to every requirement of the law. I have evaded no subpoena and have been ready at all times to do my best to see that full justice be done to all concerned in this case.

"One thing amuses me greatly, and that is the total collapse of Deputy Attorney-General Cook, who rattled around in the shoes of William Travers Jerome. This man Cook stated in his opening address to the jury that he was going to prove me untruthful. Well, he not only failed utterly to do that, but he finally wound up by admitting in open court that he had deliberately lied when he stated that he had not seen me or talked with me a week ago yesterday, when I went to New York to see him. That certainly is laughable."

Mrs. Thaw then related with great gusto how Dr. W. J. McGibbons, the Chateaugay doctor who was summoned last Thursday by officers representing the Attorney-General's office and the sheriff of Clinton county to examine Mrs. Thaw, had sent to Mrs. Thaw a bill for $100 for his services in calling on her four times.

Mrs. Thaw simply forwarded the bill to Deputy Attorney-General Cook and wrote Dr. McGibbon a polite note saying that she had not summoned him, and that he must look to Mr. Cook or the sheriff of Clinton county or whoever called him, for his pay.

Mrs. Thaw hasn't the slightest doubt that Justice Hendrick will release "H. K. T.," as she referred to her husband. She has been told that public sentiment throughout the country and particularly in New York is strongly in favor of letting Harry go free.

"All right," she said, "let him go; I'm willing. I wish him luck. I see he's going to start in two days for the Panama exposition in San Francisco in a brand-new automobile. Believe me, there'll be something doing on the midway, or the Panama Zone, or whatever they call it out there, when H. T. K. arrives at the Golden Gate. If there is anybody who hasn't heard of the Panama fair, they'll hear about it now. It will be some advertisement for the fair, all right.

"I hope he doesn't try to drive his new car into Rector's or Shanley's before he starts, like he used to do when he took it into his head to start something.

"Just wait and see what happens," said Mrs. Thaw as Jack Clifford prepared to row the reporter across the narows. "It won't be long.

"Remember the night that the news came that 'H. T. K.' had escaped from Matteawan? I was playing at Hammerstein's.

"Well, about a hundred newspaper men and women swarmed down on me to ask what I had to say.

"LET HARRY TALK."

"'I won't have much to say,' was all I told the reporters that night. 'Just wait a day or two and Harry will start talking himself.' And sure enough, before he got out of New Hampshire on the train on which he was trying to escape to Canada, he went up to a man on the train—a stranger, mind you—and said, 'Do you know who I am?'

"'No,' replied the man. 'Who the devil are you?'

"'Why, I'm Harry K. Thaw,' said the famous Harry Thaw.

"'You don't say,' said the stranger. 'Why, you're just the man I am looking for. I'm the sheriff and I'm looking for you. Come along with me.'

"It was the sheriff of the county, and if Harry could have kept still for a few minutes longer, he would have been in Canada all right."

BOSTON LADY IN A DESPERATE WAY

Mrs. M. Jones, Who Resides at No. 306 Columbus Ave., Relates Story.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of stomach trouble. While stomach disorder is among the most common diseases that prevail, it is sometimes the last recognized by patients, who very often content themselves with "doctoring" the symptoms, while the original disease may be constantly sapping their very life blood. If these symptoms are unheeded more serious results may be expected. It is the only way nature has of warning you that all is not well with your health.

It is thus that the stomach sends out its call for help and this trouble cannot be removed unless you use common sense and assist nature. This is the object of Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy. It relieves the stomach of its burden, thereby giving it an opportunity to regain its normal strength, tones up, strengthens and revitalizes the entire system; restores the lost power of digestion, acts on the liver and kidneys and banishes rheumatism from the blood.

Many local people are testifying daily to the good results obtained in the most distressing cases. For instance, Mrs. M. Jones, who resides at No. 306 Columbus Avenue, and who has lived in this city for 25 years, and is a well-known and popular lady, recently stated:

"I had stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia for the last four years. After eating my food would ferment in my stomach, causing gases to form, and I was always more or less bloated. I had dizzy spells and headaches, and had to be very careful about my diet. I have taken one bottle of Plant Juice, and now I can eat any kind of food; have no more aches or pains afterwards, and no gas or bloating at all. I can truthfully recommend Plant Juice to all stomach sufferers, and I am telling all my lady friends about the good it has done for me. I consider it a grand medicine."

The Plant Juice man is at the Liggett drug store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Advertisement.

LET me read you from letters addressed to the producers of the "Romance of Elaine." A married woman in Omaha writes; "I certainly think they are grand. A young woman in Iselin, Pa., says; "I think 'Elaine' is the sweetest actress on the screen and I would not miss her if I had to go a thousand times a week." A Pittsburg admirer says: "I am an ardent admirer of the 'Exploits of Elaine'." CREEL MAY NOT TAKE BOSTON'S HEALTH POST

WASHINGTON, July 15.—It is announced, following a long conference between Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Newton, Surgeon-General Blue of the Public Health Service and Dr. Richard M. Creel, that Dr. Creel will not become Health Commissioner and quarantine officer of Boston for several weeks, if at all.

The appointment of Dr. Creel to this dual position had been approved by the Treasury Department and it was confidentially believed in Boston that this eminent health expert would take up his new work at an early date.

Rain Today, Rain Forty Days, St. Swithin Says

If it rains today, it will rain for forty days.

Why?

Because today, July 15 is St. Swithin's day. As everybody knows, the rainy season begins, or doesn't begin, today.

GUGGENHEIM'S DIVORCE FEE $65,000

NEW YORK, July 15.—William Guggenheim's story of the circumstances under which his first wife, Mrs. Grace Wahl Guggenheim, was induced to divorce him in Chicago in 1901 which divorce she later sought to have annulled on the ground that it was fraudulent, is told for the first time in an affidavit filed in the United States District Court here in a suit brought by Chicago attorneys to recover for professional services.

In his affidavit Mr. Guggenheim asserts that the arrangements for the divorce were all made by Samuel Untermeyer, to whom he says he has paid fees amounting to more than $65,000 for his services in the original divorce suit and in the subsequent proceedings. The statements have a bearing on the disbarment proceedings now pending against Louis Werner, who acted as attorney for Mrs. Guggenheim in the divorce suit.

The suit of the Chicago attorneys was brought by Gregory, Poppenhusen & McNab against William Guggenheim and his brothers, Daniel, Isaac, Murry, Simon and Solomon R. Guggenheim. The complaint stated that between January 1, 1913, and June 1, 1914, the plaintiffs rendered professional services in the proceedings to vacate Mrs. Grace Guggenheim's divorce decree, which were of a reasonable value of $25,000. The complaint admitted that $5,000 had been paid and asked for the balance of $20,000.

COLEMAN SAYS PHOTO MONEY IS WASTE

Acting Mayor George W. Coleman declared today that the expenditure by Mayor Curley of $500 for photographs of himself is an example of looseness and waste in spending the city's money.

He declared it to be one more argument for efficiency in the administration of the city.

This opinion was given, following the printing yesterday of the city auditor's report, showing that the Mayor has spent this amount for photographs, distributed to his personal and political friends.

Acting Mayor Coleman said: "I admit the expenditure by Mayor Curley of $500 for photographs of himself shows looseness and carelessness in the spending of the city's taxes. It ought to be stopped. Things ought to be tightened up all along the line."

"But this is picayune, compared with the waste that is undoubtedly going on in some of the large city departments. We are informed by Guy Emerson that a million dollars could be saved in the Public Works Department alone."

"The public needs to be educated as to how its money should be expended and the papers are doing right when they show this thing up. Nevertheless, the Mayor should not be severely criticised. He is well within his rights in making this expenditure, and is only doing what others Mayors before him have done."

Among some of the other items on the auditor's quarterly report of expenditures of the Mayor's office are: Entertaining guests, $309.15; automobile expenses, $2,181.91; flowers, $252.90; carriage hire and traveling expenses, $334.60. Mr. Coleman pointed out that the previous administrations had spent money for photographs.

Mayor Fitzgerald, during his last year of office, spent $232.70 for photos of himself on postal cards. His autos for the year cost $3,390 for upkeep and $1,758 for chauffeurs' wages.

Lynn Girl of 8 Imprisoned in School Ash Pit

Mary Nahigan, eight years old, of No. 8 Barker's court, Lynn, is at the Lynn Hospital suffering from severe injuries, the result of falling through a trap into the ash pit of the Franklin School, where she was imprisoned several hours, until rescued by the fire department.

Mary was passing through the school yard yesterday afternoon on her way home when she stepped on the cover to the pit, which opened up and allowed the child to drop through, a distance of fifteen feet. Only the presence of the comparatively soft ashes saved her from more serious injuries.

No one saw the accident and the child lay there until her cries were heard by passersby, who notified the men of Engine 6, who brought her to the surface. She was first taken to her home, where her injuries were found to be more serious than at first supposed and she was later removed to the Lynn Hospital.

RISK LIVES, HALT MAD FIRE HORSES

In stopping a pair of runaway horses attached to fire engine No. 15, which was responding to a three-alarm fire in Green street, West End, Patrolman Rowe and Welch of the Court square station undoubtedly prevented a serious accident at the risk of their own lives.

The animals became uncontrollable at the corner of State and Devonshire streets. They were dashing madly through Adams square, when they were noticed by Rowe. He jumped on the rear of the hose wagon, which followed. Welch, who was standing on Washington street, was quick to join him. The driver of the hose wagon whipped up his horses and soon overtook the runaway team. Welch and Rowe leaped from the wagon, seized the runaways by the bridles and succeeded in bringing them to a stop after being dragged several feet.

SMITH TO DROP FROM PLANE SATURDAY

Saturday afternoon will see the beginning of the carnival and circus that is to be held at the Huntington avenue grounds, all of next week, under the auspices of the Commercial and Fraternal League of America.

On that day Captain Redding, the daring aviator, is to fly from Squantum to City Hall, and there deliver a letter to the acting Mayor.

Redding will fly about 3,000 feet high and with him will be L. D. Smith. When over Boston Common Smith will drop three thousand feet to the earth and if his parachute works and he alights safely he will distribute 5,000 tickets for the show to children.

The circus is to be one grand revel for the old and young and the price of admission to the grounds will be but 25 cents. For weeks men have been getting the Huntington avenue grounds in order for one of the biggest shows that has ever been exhibited there, for besides Kraus Greater Shows, which will be the main attraction, there will be any number of other attractions.

TWO SHOWS DAILY.

Every night and afternoon there will be open-air performances, some that will thrill and others that will be as instructive as interesting.

Especially thrilling and interesting as well as instructive will be the mimic aerial warfare. Soldiers from the forts in the harbor will participate and will attempt to bring down the aeroplanes that will dodge about above.

At night the scene will be doubly thrilling for the flashes of the aerial gun, the blaze of thousands of electric lights, the harsh notes of the barkers, will all combine to make one believe he is witnessing a real engagement.

AERIAL WARFARE.

In fact that is what the management wants to show, just how the aerial warfare has been carried on.

There is to be some thrilling aerial work by the Delmore Sisters, two other girls, 65 feet in the air, will dress and undress while hanging by their teeth. Captain Kline every afternoon and evening will make his heart-rending high dive into a shallow tank of water.

Ferris wheels will give everyone a grand view of the entire show and the barkers and funny men will make life a merry whirl for all.

The circus will arrive Sunday morning and by afternoon the tents will be up.

CAPTAIN REDDING, the aviator, from whose biplane L. D. Smith will drop by parachute 3,000 feet to Boston Common.

HUNT ASSAILANT OF BACK BAY NURSE

The police of the Back Bay station are hunting for the man who attacked Miss Gladys Harper, a nurse, as she entered the vestibule of her home at No. 12 Blackwood street, early today.

Miss Harper claims to have been attacked by an unknown man, who after striking her on the forehead, dragged her into the basement of the building and stole her handbag containing $3.

She says that her screams frightened him away. After recovering from the effects of the incident the woman hurrid up the back stairs to her apartment on the third floor. She told her mother, who telephoned to the police.

The auto patrol from the Back Bay station, containing Police Surgeon Sherwood and a squad of officers under Sergeant Campbell, was rushed to the scene. Miss Harper was found to be suffering from a lascerated wound on the forehead.

150,000 WELSH MINERS STRIKE

By JOHN C. FOSTER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

CARDIFF, Wales, July 15.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon leaders of the striking coal miners announced that 150,000 had quit work. All the mines in the Swansea, Maesteg, Aberdare, Monmouthshire, Heath, Avon and Rhondda districts are closed.

Under present conditions the government munition factories have coal supplies for only a few days and unless the strike is quickly terminated some of them will have to close down or run on part time.

Martial law is in effect throughout South Wales, though no formal proclamation has been issued. Troops are on guard along the government railroads and all docks. The number of men who went out surprised even the few agitators who had been most active. It had been expected that not more than 42,000 would obey the call.

It is believed that the strike will soon be ended. President Walter Runciman of the Board of Trade has gone to Cardiff and is working with the leaders opposed to the strike to effect a compromise.

Every man who struck rendered himself liable to a fine under the provisions of the munitions act.

GETS 9 MONTHS FOR FLEECING WOMAN

Eugene H. Arnold of Tech Chambers, a tire dealer, has been sentenced by Judge Creed, to nine months at Deer Island for fleecing Mrs. Eva Bartlett of $1,400, every penny of her savings.

According to Mrs. Bartlett it was the old story of a trusting woman and a baroken romance. She placed implicit confidence in Arnold because she believed they were soon to be married.

She let him have the money at various times, and finally to satisfy his demand for "more money in his business," placed a mortgage on her piano. She now stands to lose the piano.

CHORUS GIRL WIFE OF CALHOUN SUES FOR ALIENATION

Mrs. Mabel Snyder Calhoun, wife of James E. Calhoun, grandson of the famous South Carolina statesman, who is suing her husband for a separation and her father-in-law for $100,000.

NEW YORK, July 15.—"I was a stage girl and that was too much for John C. Calhoun, my father-in-law. He couldn't bear to have it said that his son married an actress. That's the sum and substance of it. My, are actresses so dreadful? Really, he'd never recognize me as a member of the family."

The recollection of her father-in-law's alleged snub caused Mabel Snyder Calhoun, the blue-eyed golden-haired wife of James C. Calhoun, great grandson of the South Carolina statesman, and sister-in-law of the Baroness de Nagell, to smile. She confirmed the fact that she has started two separate actions against her husband and one against her father-in-law for $100,000 for alienation.

Young Calhoun's father is a wealthy financier, who has accumulated a fortune in railroad promotion in the South, a grandson of John Caldwell Calhoun, once Vice-President of the United States, and a brother of Patrick Calhoun. He married Linnie Adams, grand niece of Richard M. Johnson, also a former Vice-President of the United States. He served through the Civil War and afterward became a planter and financier. He was a special ambassador to France in 1897, and has acted as president and director of many Southern railroads.

In a suit for separation, Mrs. Mabel Snyder Calhoun, through S. V. & G. P. Heimberber, her counsel, will apply today for $200 a week alimony and $2,500 counsel fee, pending trial.

In another action she will ask the court to cancel a private separation agreement wherein she signed a paper which proved to be a release from further alimony payments. She says she thought she was signing a receipt for a $500 payment made by her husband to her.

In a third action she demands $100,000 damages from her father-in-law, for alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

The elder Mr. Calhoun stated at his home, No. 667 Madison avenue, that a summons had been served on him, but the nature of the complaint he could only guess at.

"Really, I'd rather have nothing said about it," he commented, "but you're safe in saying that I had nothing to do with my son leaving his wife. You'll have to see his attorney about that."

His son, James E. Calhoun, is associated with him in business and lives at the Madison avenue address. In December, 1910, young Calhoun married Mabel Snyder, who was then one of the beauties in Ziegfeld's "Follies." She declares they were very happy together until about January 6, 1914, when he departed and rejoined his father. In her separation action she charges abandonment, and in his answer he denies her charge.

How To Gain Weight A Pound a Day

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Leading druggists in Boston and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Modes of Today)

A harmless, yet very effective, treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone. All druggists.—Advertisement

GLOUCESTER TO LOSE PLANT OF HAMMOND

John Hays Hammond Jr., the young wireless research wizard, announced today that he will remove his plant and laboratory from Gloucester.

Immediately following the announcement workmen began to dismantle the plant, including the two aerial towers 255 feet high, which are landmarks for miles along the coast.

Mr. Hammond will remove to Fisher's Island, off Mystic, Ct., where he proposes to erect a plant and research bureau costing $750,000 and employing at the start 1,000 workmen. It is probable that many more than this will be employed after the works have a fair start.

Although Mr. Hammond will not admit it, the announcement of the building of a big plant is taken to mean that the government has bought his inventions.

Mr. Hammond is the son of John Hays Hammond, the wealthy mining engineer. The son is the inventor of the radio torpedo and many improvements in electrical and wireless apparatus. By wireless he can manage a torpedo boat from shore.

NEEDS BETTER FACILITIES.

Mr. Hammond said today:

"Gloucester is not an industrial centre, and I have been greatly handicapped on this account. I practically have to pay a double rate on everything shipped to me, and everything shipped out. I am sorry to leave Gloucester, for it has an excellent harbor, but I must have more facilities as the government has bought my torpedo."

"I am going to Fisher's Island, where I expect to erect a manufacturing plant and laboratories, employing at least a thousand men, at a cost of $750,000. There I shall have every facility with which to work out my inventions with a minimum amount of trouble."

Following the announcement of Mr. Hammond's removal, residents of Gloucester are recalling the troubles of the Hammonds in acquiring a piece of land on which to build an addition to the laboratory. The land was for sale, but was said that when the owner learned that the possible buyer was the wealthy millionaire Hammond, senior, the price went up with startling suddenness. Mr. Hammond did not buy.

Residents think the attitude of natives may have something to do with the removal. They are confirmed in their opinion by Mr. Hammond's enigmatical remark to reporters when he announced the removal: "There is a limit to everything and the time has now arrived when I must depart."

Beyond this, however, Mr. Hammond would say nothing having any bearing on his desire to buy land in Gloucester.

Nathan Matthews Sails for England

Despite the hazards of transatlantic and European travel, former Mayor Nathan Matthews and Edgar N. Wrightington, vice-president of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, are aboard the steamer St. Louis, which sailed from New York Saturday for England. It is reported that their journey has to do with possible war orders for coal and picric acid. They have gone in the interest of the Massachusetts Gas Companies.

"THE GODDESS" By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard.

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company

"I BELIEVE you," said Mrs. Gunsdorf. "But cover that thing up; you don't want anyone in Bitumen to know you've got that."

"If I lost it," said Mary, "and the right person found it, I wouldn't care."

She spoke in a cold, defiant sort of way, and then fastened her dress once more over the necklace.

"You think," said Mrs. Gunsdorf, "that if it wasn't for her—you'd stand a chance?"

"Don't you feel a little that way, too, Mrs. Gunsdorf? You are wonderfully good-looking, you know, and Mr. Barclay seems to have cast in his lot with labor. It looks as if you'd stand the better chance of us two, doesn't it?"

Mrs. Gunsdorf shrugged her shoulders.

"We couldn't stand any less chance than we do now. And the oftener he sees her, the less that chance gets."

"If she really comes from Heaven"——

"The quicker she goes back the better?"

Mary laughed a cold little laugh.

"I'd not be the one to hold her back by the skirts.

"Nor I."

"But," said Mrs. Gunsdorf, "if she went to Heaven, and any one in this town had a hand in sending her, and got found out"—she shuddered—"that person would be torn to atoms."

"Where does she live?"

"They've fixed tents for her and her party just outside the town. They call it 'Headquarters of Celestia—the Girl from Heaven.'"

"Who's in her party?"

"There's Professor Stilliter—I guess she goes to him when she's in a fix for what to say next. There's a kind of half-witted fellow named Douglas. She keeps a couple of secretaries going day and night. There's a cook and servants, lots of people. Wouldn't be easy to come at her."

"Have you any idea," asked Miss Blackstone, "how much these pearls I showed you are worth? No idea? A woman could live on the income. She could wear pretty clothes and have a servant. If she had a husband she didn't like, she could afford to divorce him.

"Do you know what I'd do if any one should come to me and tell me that a certain person was never going to get in anybody's way again? I'd give those pearls to that person gladly, or I'd lose them where that person could find them."

"What's the use of wishes when your heart's sore?"

"No use at all," admitted Miss Blackstone, "and still I'd rather be rich and heart-broken than poor and heart-broken, wouldn't you?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Gunsdorf, thoughtfully. "I would."

Miss Blackstone rose, her hand at her throat where the pearls lay.

"I hope," she said, "that I shall have the pleasure of seeing you again—soon. What do you think?"

"Oh," said Mrs. Gunsdorf, "I shouldn't wonder."

And she, too, rose from the table, with a look in her eyes at once firm and resolved.

And now the town of Bitumen became, as one paper put it, in the centre of a new world.

Kehr had assented grimly to the settlement of the strike on Celestia's terms. He had come out for Celestia's policies. And because of his very grimness and stubbornness his late enemies began to see that he would be a tower of strength to any cause which he should espouse.

In that town, where a week ago his life would not have been worth a moment's purchase, he was already being talked of as the next United States Senator from Pennsylvania.

Special correspondents had begun to flock into Bitumen. Many who came to jeer stayed in a state of great wonderment and began presently to number themselves among the faithful.

Stop for a moment and try to realize the power for good or evil, the collective power, of the newspapers of America. If they are not the whole voice of the people, they are alone that part of it which can make itself heard.

The newspapers united could elect any man they please.

You conjure up to yourself a hoary nightmarish monster out of the newspapers united. But the newspapers will never become the wicked or beneficent monster of might. Some will always continue to speak for the foolish, some for the wise; some one thing one day and the other thing the next. Even thus divided, great is their power.

If we have any wisdom as a nation, we owe it to the newspapers. Likewise, we owe it to them that we are not always wise or on the side of righteousness.

Parents and the Child

The Difference After the Baby Comes

By Virginia Terhune Van De Water

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.

A SENTENCE from one of the books by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has been much quoted.

In describing the affairs of a married couple she says: "All went well until the baby came. I have observed that all usually does go well until the first baby comes."

When the story containing this paragaph appeared the opinion it expressed was widely discussed. "Absurd!" sentimentalists exclaimed. "Are not children a link to unite parents more closely than before? If a man loves his wife he will love her better as the mother of his children."

"Surely," said other sentimentalists, "the woman will love her husband better when she cares for his children. When she looks at them, she will think of their father. It is evident Elizabeth Stuart Phelps knows nothing about the matter. Her statement is entirely false."

But was it false? While acknowledging that there is some truth in what sentimentalists say, can we deny that children are too often the causes of discussions and dissensions between parents?

In the first place, the little ones demand much time that was once bestowed upon the husband, or, at least, claimed by him. Moreover, the man and woman have different ideas of how children should be trained. The father is sometimes too strict; the mother is often too lenient. There are also homes in which this rule is reversed, and the wife is the disciplinarian while the husband is overindulgent.

Every child is better for a combination of influences. He needs the watchful tenderness of the mother and the knowledge that she always understands him. But he also requires a firm masculine hand on the reins of government. I say this is what he needs. It is not always what he gets. I suppose, as fathers and mothers are only frail human beings like the rest of mankind, they must make grave errors in the training of their sons and daughters.

It is a pity that it is the poor child who suffers from the experiments of dutiful and well-meaning parents. I am always sorry for the first child. Upon him the young couple who are responsible for his existence try all their pet theories. And as all weather signs fail in a drought, so all theories must fail in certain instances.

Without meaning to show shameless partiality towards my own sex, I must maintain that in the majority of cases the mother understands the small child better than does the father. Why shouldn't she? It would be strange if she did not. From birth she has the care of the little one. She is with him for hours while the father is with him for minutes.

She sees him when he is happy and when he is miserable, when he is naughty and when he is good. There is also a bond between a mother and her child that does not exist between a father and his offspring. It is too subtle and sensitive a thing to be described in words, but it exists.

If one doubts it let him pause to consider how much oftener fathers will disown children than mothers will. I have known good men who shut their doors upon wayward sons. I do not know a respectable mother who has ever done this.

She deserves no particular credit for this. She cannot help the nature that makes it impossible for her to banish her child from her life. But in view of these facts it is foolish to state that the average father loves his child with the self-abandonment peculiar to a genuine mother.

Therefore it is hard for a man to understand a mother's attitude of resentment towards her husband's dealings with some of the shortcomings of her children.

"That baby should be forced to lie still and keep quiet!" he declares when aroused in the night by the wailing of his year-old son.

"But he is teething, dear," the wife reminds him.

"Teething or no teething, he ought to be taught obedience!" the man insists. "Why don't you spank him and tell him to lie still?"

"Spank him!" she burst forth in horrified accents. "Spank him because he is suffering! Never!"

"Very well, then I go into another room where I can have some peace," the incensed husband bursts forth. "Now you can spoil the child to your heart's content."

And, with as much dignity as is compatible with pajamas and slippered feet, the master of the domain repairs to the vacant spare bedroom to spend the rest of the night in comfortable and self-righteous slumber.

And the wife, as soon as the door closes behind him, snatches the baby from the crib and clasps him to her breast, whispering to him tearfully that he is her darling, her comfort.

As this is just what the youngster wanted her to do, he sinks into a peaceful slumber upon her arm. And she, allowing him to remain there through the remainder of the night, is fulfilling her husband's prediction that she will "spoil the child to her heart's content."

Household Suggestions

To cleanse white paint, boil two or three onions thoroughly, then use the water to clean the paint without soap. All the dirt will disappear, leaving the paint white and glossy.

When you are laying away your silver in the drawer or case don't forget to place therein a piece of gum camphor. It keeps the goods bright a long time.

To make really good soup remember that the meat must be stewed long enough to extract all goodness. It is then strained into a large bowl, and the liquid left till cold. Any fat there may be will have risen to the top and be in a cake. Remove this carefully, and then your stock is ready to be dealt with.

To remove mildew from book-covers of morocco and roan leathers, obtain a tin of ordinary vaseline and rub well into the leather with a piece of soft rag. Then leave for a time and afterwards rub lightly over again with a fresh soft rag.

When making fruit pies put in the sugar when the dish is half full and not on top. If you add sugar last the pastry will be heavy.

Every housewife knows how easily milk scorches. Cover the bottom of the saucepan with water and let it get scalding hot before putting in the milk to boil. The milk will not scorch.

* * *

When putting away a silver teapot, or one that is not in everyday use, place a little stick across the top under the cover. This allows fresh air to get in and prevents mustiness.

We All Have Wings of Victory; Do Not Plod

Everyone Should Strive for the Best and Forget Failure

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"WHAT matters if the life uncertain be
To all? What tho its goal
Be never reached? What tho it fall and flee—
Have we not each a soul?

"Be like the bird that on a bough too frail
To bear him, gaily swings;
He carols tho the slender branches fail—
He knows that he has wings."
—VICTOR HUGO.

"I NEVER dare to let myself want anything very much," said Louise discontentedly, "for everything on which I set my heart eludes me. If I care for people, they disappoint me. If I have an ambition, I can't reach it. Even when I try to better myself in position, I always get to the place just after they have selected the applicant ahead of me. I'm schooling myself to be indifferent. The folks who drudge along through life without looking above them are the happiest. I'm through setting my heart on things I can't have."

And then I told Louise how wrong she was. But the world is full of embittered and cynical Louises—will they listen now while I try to convince them of the utter, perverted wrongness of their—"philosophy?"

Dumb, driven cattle may go mechanically through the processes of living and dying. But all human beings have glimpsed something better—and can never forget. To plod indifferently through the days because your heart has met with disappointment, is to ignore your heritage of hope.

Suppose you do only glimpse the "Promised Land" and never reach it; each glance that flashed across your sight had some of joy in it and gladdened your heart even though you could not secure that beauty and make it a permanent possession.

Suppose you yearn for things you cannot attain. Every time you long you come nearer attaining. You stand on spiritual "tip-toes" and your stature increases a bit and your reach is longer, and at last you can stretch to where your desire is.

Once I knew a little clerk in a hardware store who wanted to write poetry. Her mind was full of vague visions of loveliness, but somehow she could not get them on paper in lifting melodies that editors would buy. She actually walked to and from work and did without lunches so that she might buy paper and stamps for the verses which returned with the regularity they were sent out.

For three years her life was an arid desert scattered with the skulls of her dead hopes. She managed to sell pots and kettles all the while she was battling for the Promised Land she could see and could not enter. She was a plain little thing—underfed and badly dressed, and there were not even attention and admiration to gladden her life.

But she did not plod just because she could not fly! She kept on hoping and longing for the power to express what she could feel. She swung bird-like on the frail bough of her desire—and even while she balanced precariously, she was lifting herself above common things and visioning the sky.

Into her face came some of the loveliness of the visions she could not express as beautifully as she could feel it. The sweetness of her dreamy eyes and tender mouth were so attractive in time that they won for her the love of a man who would never have noticed the dull little earth plodder she was before her dreams swung her above mere selling of hardware. And her ten-year-old son is going to make the songs his mother yearned to sing!

Even if the little hardware clerk had attained to nothing, she would have had the loveliness of her dreams. If dreams are never fulfilled—they still are beautiful. If they bring us to a land different from our visioning they still can carry above the sordidness of drudgery.

Your soul is a winged thing. If you cultivate it—if you strive for the finest things you are capable of conceiving, instead of being satisfied with the most commonplace things you can see—you are lifting yourself above the stolidness that makes the Russian peasant a serf—and the peon of the South a slave.

Your duty to yourself is to strive for the best things you can see and imagine. Be worthy of your best dreams. Don't rest wearily in facts. Attend to present needs and duties and keep your soul ready to soar toward the best, the finest, the noblest visions you can glimpse. Never mind disappointment and failure. There is victory in striving, though the branches beneath you fail. Flutter to a lower branch long enough to rest—and then fly again toward the sky. You will rise above defeat to the best you have it in you to be.

A Fable for the Fair

How a Platonic Friendship May Result in an Anti-Platonic Surrender

By ANN LISLE

THERE was once a girl who believed in platonic friendships. And she made a specialty of them.

"Why shouldn't men and women be friends?" she asked of all the women she knew. "I'm sure it's perfectly possible and much more interesting than merely having emotions all the time. It isn't a real compliment if some man raves over the nose, for which a line of dim ancestors have more responsibility than I. But if a chap says I have a keen knowledge of world politics or play a fine game of bridge he is talking about things over which I have been to some personal pains.

"Mere feminity—an accident of sex—isn't a thing on which any sane woman wants to base conquest of the crudely masculine. I like men's minds. I want them to admire mine, and my character, and my ability to be a pal—as good a pal as another fellow. Now, isn't that the best way?"

And the man to whom she spoke would look upon a pair of black-lashed gray eyes that from the locale of any other girl's face would have been sending wireless messages straight to his heart. Then, as men are sane creatures who seldom ask figs from thistles, he would conclude that she was a cold little thing—but pretty and clever and presentable withal—and that he might as well play the game her way, since it was her way, or not at all.

Most of the men who knew her liked her second best to their wives or third best to the two sweethearts between whom they were beginning—and found themselves telling her so. And she liked it—and boasted about it.

"Tommy Jones and I are the best pals," she once told Rex Darwin. "He says there isn't another girl in the whole world he can see because he loves Clara so—but that doesn't interfere with his honest liking for me. I've got his liking. That is mine for all time. It's there—just there, like the Rocky Mountains or the Great Lakes. It would take an upheaval of Nature to destroy it."

"And does Clara like friendship with her fiance?" Rex asked.

"Oh, she understands—she knows I'm not dangerous, that I don't think of men as men at all, but as minds. It's companionship and understanding and liking I want. That's the big thing—the thing your personality gets—the other's only moonshine and balderdash."

"How do you know?" Rex asked. "I might show you now—'Just a little love,'" he hummed ingratiatingly.

And then the girl laughed with a clear ripple of humor that made sentiment about as possible as does a searchlight turned on the particular park bench you have been making for. "Oh, Reggie—imagine your getting sentimental over me—raving over my pink and white complexion for instance when we both know I freckle worse than you do."

On a Thursday in May some one introduced her to Horace Easton. He took her out to dinner the following Monday night—for girls who believe in platonic friendship are not prudishly conventional—they don't have to produce an atmosphere of being unattainable since they aren't trying to be attained.

Horace was brilliant and entertaining and listened politely when she aired her theories on platonics—and as politely changed the subject to a discussion of his admiration for the beautiful Mrs. Thornley—and all beautiful women—and the type possessing gray eyes and clear brunette coloring. And on parting he kissed her hand—and little prickles wandered up her arm to her ear which tingled strangely against a hot cheek. And she wondered if her eyes were as grey as Mrs. Thornley's—and examined them carefully in her mirror that night.

On the following Monday Horace kissed her lips. In June, as much to his surprise as to hers, their engagement was announced. Horace had merely been out for conquest—but the girl who believed in platonic friendship was so lovable and loving that he couldn't let her go out of his life to be captured by any of that mass of fellows who liked her—and whom he thought ready to love her if she would let them.

Which proves that it takes two to play at platonic friendship—and that it may be the only game a girl knows until some intrepid soul comes along and teaches her a better one.

Also, it teaches that an audacious kiss on the hand has its value.

A Harmless Way to Remove Coarse Hair

This method is totally different from pastes and rub-on preparations which merely remove hair from the surface of the skin. It robs hair of its vitality by attacking it under the skin as well as on the skin. Theatre Magazine says: De Miracle, the original liquid hair remover, is "far superior to electricity, X-ray or any other method." Beware of so-called hair removers which are supposedly recommended through bogus quotations from so-called magazines which do not exist.—Advertisement.

TODAY'S BEAUTY AIDS

To clear up and whiten the skin and secure that charm of pink and white youthful freshness so much desired by all women you will find it far safer to rely upon a good face lotion rather than powder. To get rid of that shiny and muddy appearance in your complexion, dissolve four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, and add two teaspoonfuls glycerin. Apply this to your face, neck and arms, rubbing gently until dry. This lotion does not show or rub off like powder and is much better. It is splendid for removing tan, freckles, pimples and sallowness.

You can make a delightful shampoo for a very trifling cost if you get from your druggist a package of canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Pour a little at a time on the scalp and rub briskly. This creates an abundance of thick, white lather that thoroughly dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly, with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich lustre and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.—Advertisement.

CHAMPION WILLARD TELLS WHAT TO EAT TO STAY IN FINE PHYSICAL TRIM

By JESS WILLARD.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt, All Rights Reserved.)

I GREW up to be big and strong because I was raised in the open air, did hard work and kept away from whiskey and tobacco. I can't take any credit for the health and muscle that came to me from my prairie life.

I do give myself the credit of keeping well and strong. When I took up fighting I left the prairies for the cities. Between fights there was the temptation to loaf, to drink, to gobble food and to get flabby and fat.

Today I am in better shape than ever before in all my life. I would have to train for a long fight, of course, but I could step into the ring for a ten-round go tomorrow. What I have done to keep fit and strong is what anybody can do to get fit and strong.

For the first two years of my fighting, I didn't have a manager and I didn't have any money to hire trainers. Until Tom Jones took hold of me I didn't know what it was to have a good rub-down. I had to do everything myself.

It was when I first went to New York that I got the idea of keeping in condition. You see, I had always been such a husky that it never occurred to me that I would ever have to bother about keeping in shape.

I thought health and muscle were natural. And so they were natural as long as I led a natural life out in the open air, doing work with my hands. But city life isn't natural.

So after I'd been in New York for a while, loafing around and sleeping in a hall bedroom, I began to feel kind of dopey. My food didn't taste good to me, and I got to having headaches. So I knew something had to be done.

I didn't have any money to go to a doctor with, but one day I heard that the city had a free doctor. I went down to the Health Department right away, and after sitting around with a lot of people in a big room my turn came.

I told the young fellow I wasn't exactly sick and that I didn't want any medicine. He told me to "beat it," but I stuck, and after a while he got interested. Almost everybody can find time to talk to a ball player or a fighter.

The young doctor was the fellow who told me that city life wasn't natural.

"Man was made for the open air," he said. His natural work is the sort of work that brings his muscles into play and builds up his heart and lungs.

"If you can't get that kind of work naturally, you've got to get it artificially. Farmers, blacksmiths, boilermakers, carpenters—people like that have jobs that take care of their stomachs and their muscles.

"Clerks, lawyers, doctors and all other people who work indoors at things that don't use their legs and arms have got to take some sort of exercise. Now that you've quit farming, you come in that class."

"Then you mean that I've got to take exercise?" I said.

"Sure thing," he said. "Not once a week, but every day. Make exercise a habit or it won't do you any good. And I also advise you to eat intelligently."

"What do you mean?" I asked. "Food's food, ain't it?"

"Hardly," he laughed. "Half the stuff people eat isn't food at all. It kills their appetite and they think they've been fed. That's all. I can give you three pies, and you won't be hungry any more, but your body won't get any good out of them.

"Look here," he said, "An automobile runs with gasoline, and it's got a tank for that gasoline. Now you can fill that tank with water, and while it may be just as full as though you had gasoline in it, the machine won't run. Do you get me?"

"Yep," I said, "But how's a fellow to know about food?"

"Well, there's several hundred books he can read if he wants to. Or he can go to a doctor."

"Well," I grinned. "Here I am."

We got down to cases then, and before I left he'd given me a pretty good idea what kind of food meant strength, and what kind of food meant waste. From that day to this I've watched what I eat just as carefully as I watch my exercises.

First thing of all, I've cut out cakes and pies and all kinds of rich stuff. Even when they've got a good food value, they are indigestible and put too much work on the stomach.

For breakfast I eat oatmeal and eggs and a piece of steak, and whole wheat bread toasted until it's as hard as a brick. Be sure that the oatmeal has been cooked long enough, and be sure that you take a bite of toast with every mouthful of oatmeal and meat.

The hard toast will make you chew. I also drink cocoa or chocolate at breakfast. Both have a real food value. Coffee and tea give you nothing but a bucked up feeling that is soon followed by a let-down feeling. In their way they're just as much drugs as tobacco or whiskey.

Keep away from pepper, Worcester sauce and things like that. They irritate the stomach. Also watch out for the salt. Highly seasoned food is bad.

I call my meal in the middle of the day my dinner. My meat for this meal is roast beef or roast mutton, well done. You take red meat regularly, and it's an invite to rheumatism. I also have baked potatoes and spinach.

I say spinach, but beet tops are just as good, and I think dandelion greens are even better. There's no excuse for anybody not having them on the table every day from Spring till Fall. You can get a mess out of any field or yard, and if there isn't any open space near your home, they're cheap at the market.

Greens are full of the stuff that makes blood and energy. They are not only easy to digest themselves, but they help to digest the rest of your food. And I don't know of a better blood medicine unless it's sassafras tea.

No doctor had to tell me about that. Every Spring my mother would get her bundle of sassafras, and all of us kids would have to drink sassafras tea for a month. They can't beat it as a Spring tonic.

My dessert at dinner is usually rice pudding with raisins in it, or else prunes and raisins cooked together. People can kid the prune all they want, but it tanks along with spinach as a real food.

All prunes ought to be cooked three hours at least. After they have been on a couple of hours, pour in the raisins, and let 'em stand for another hour. Prunes and raisins, well cooked, make energy, aid digestion and are the best things in the world for the bowels.

I've gotten to be some shark in the kitchen. The way to know how a thing ought to be cooked is to know how to cook it yourself. When I went into training for the Johnson fight, I told Jones I wanted my own cook. When he came I went out into the kitchen and showed him how I wanted things done.

A kitchen is the most important room in the house to me. You might say that food is important to me because I'm a fighter. It's just as important to every man as it is to me, for no matter what your job is, you can't do it unless you've got health and strength.

And good food isn't so much a matter of money as it is a matter of buying and cooking. I would like to bet that even the poorest family, if they studied food, could live better than they do now and at half the cost.

For supper, I change from cold meats to warm as my appetite gives me the tip. Cold roast beef or lamb, or else a steak broiled. I want to say right here that I don't go in for porterhouse and tenderloin. Round steak gives you the same energy stuff at half the price.

I eat a lot of apple sauce, or else I have a desert of baked apples and cream. With every meal I have my whole wheat bread, toasted hard.

A man's size has a lot to do with the amount he eats. A Ford car doesn't take as much gasoline as a Big Six. I stand six feet six inches, and weigh in the neighborhood of 250 pounds when I'm not in training.

What keeps me in proper trim would make a little fellow hog fat. I always make it a point to get up from the table while I'm still hungry. Don't stuff until you can't any more.

Outside of meat, the foods that have done me more good than any others are greens, apple sauce, prunes and raisins, and whole wheat bread. Unless a man is doing heavy work that requires lots of strength and energy, he can stick to those things and cut out the meat.

What I say about meat is that it gives you the most nourishment in the least quantity. But let me also state that unless you chew it, and chew it hard, all the meat in the world won't do you any good.

To Overcome Sunburn, Tan, Freckles, Wrinkles

If your skin is unduly reddened, freckled or tanned, dab a liberal amount of ordinary mercolized wax on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning, fine flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it. Repeating this daily, the entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually, there's not the slightest hurt or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are affected. The underlying skin which forms the new complexion is so fresh and youthful looking, you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to actually discard an aged, faded, muddy or blotchy complexion. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any drugstore, is sufficient in most cases.

If sun and wind make you squint and frown, you're bound to cultivate wrinkles and crow's feet. To overcome these quickly, bathe the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel.—Advertisement.

Nervous Periodical Headaches

Succumb to Anti-Kamnia Tablets

This trouble commonly called "sick headache," is said to be due to the retention of urea in the system. Often it is stated that a poor condition of the blood is a cause of these headaches, or that it is a nervous condition; and in certain cases, no doubt this is true

Where treatment is demanded, it is more for the pain than anything else, and Dr. A. F. Schellschmidt of Louisville, has found Anti-kamnia Tablets to give prompt and satisfactory relief. "Rest should be insisted upon" he says, "and the patient should go to bed, darken the room, and all the attendants and family should be as quiet as possible. An emetic will sometimes shorten the attack. The bowels should be kept open with "Actoids," a hot bath and a thorough rub-down with a coarse towel often give grateful relief. Two Anti-kamnia Tablets when the first signs appear, will usually prevent the attack. During an attack, one tablet every hour or two will shorten the attack and remove the usual nausea and vomiting." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for nervous headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

A Kansas City Lady Darkened Her Gray Hair and Stimulated Its Growth by a Simple Home Process.

She Tells How She Did It

A well known resident of Kansas City, Mo., who darkened her gray hair by a simple home process, made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, stimulate its growth and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently, then every two weeks. This mixture relieves scalp troubles and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair. It does not stain the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray haired person look 10 to 20 years younger.

SEES U. S. PLACE IN SUN WANTED BY NEIGHBORS

Professor R. M. Johnston of Harvard [illegible] in a lecture at Emerson Hall declared America is reaching a point where it will be [illegible] crowded against its neighbor nations here and in Europe.

He expressed this opinion on [illegible] the question whether the necessity of war [illegible] with the [illegible] democracy. He showed that the German war machine [illegible] at which the world [illegible] tests [illegible] a century of [illegible] and on a [illegible] organization of specialists [illegible] problems of war.

The [illegible] war is many a problem [illegible] the more volunteers are [illegible] to meet an emergency the more dangerous the situation becomes.

"We are not living in the days of [illegible] the Great," said Professor Johnston. "Our present need is not for [illegible] more men, but for [illegible] more technical experts. The result is reached by the organization of groups of these for the different [illegible] of military service. It is [illegible] coordination. History does seem to demonstrate that democracies mean weak governments and that weak governments sooner rather than later fall into chaos or are destroyed from the outside. [illegible] economical and geographical conditions may largely offset these dangers, as has been the case [illegible] this country so long.

"The fact remains that modern war [illegible] greater [illegible] and skill than at any previous epoch of the world's history, that it involves more deeply than ever the prosperity of nations, and that unless a community studies organization for war as it studies the organization of its great industrial enterprises it will stand no chance when the final test comes."

Skirts Short, Waist Low Cut---Comfort!

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—If a woman wears her skirts cut far above her shoe tops and her waists cut far down at the neck give her the benefit of the doubt and consider that she is doing it for comfort's sake and nothing else. Thus reasons [illegible] of [illegible], one of the speakers at the convention of the International [illegible] Students' Association.

"None of us has a right to be a crank with regard to the subject of women's dress," said the speaker. "If her garments are what some may term [illegible] why just consider that she is doing it for comfort's sake."

HILL DEFINES ISSUE WITH GERMANY

David Jayne Hill, former Ambassador from the United States to Germany, says in his first published statement on the Lusitania controversy that if Germany intends to create her own laws of the sea it will be hard to look on her friendly professions as sincere.

The statement of the former Ambassador, who is at North Cohasset for the Summer, is as follows:

"There are occasions when silence, delay and prolonged negotiations are not only humiliating but fatal to the prestige and future influence of a nation.

TWO VITAL POINTS.

"The Lusitania controversy—for this is what we have permitted the incident to become—involves only two vital points: (1) Was the sinking of the Lusitania in accordance with the accepted rules of international law or was it not? (2) Does the Imperial German government maintain its right and intention to disregard these rules in its treatment of the citizens of a neutral and friendly country or does it not?

"Upon the answers to these two questions depends the course that should promptly be followed. If the Imperial German government accepts the rules in question and intends to observe them the controversy would end the moment that assurance was given and responsibility admitted.

"On the other hand, if the Imperial German government does not intend to recognise the existing rules of international law in a matter of such gravity, but to act, and maintain its right to act, in defiance of them, and to create for itself the law of the sea it would be difficult to regard the friendly professions of that government as sincere.

"ACT OF INSINCERITY."

"In that case, it would be an act of insincerity on the part of the United States also to accept such affirmations of friendship, and above all to express sentiments of confidence and amity in return.

"A frank and ready answer to these questions might reasonably be expected of a friendly nation. It could not, of course, be reasonably demanded until the questions were asked, but, once directly asked and directly answered, both countries would be relieved of an embarrassing situation, for both would then know what was expected and what would be accorded in the interest of a friendship that is at least exposed to a serious test.

"Until an answer is given mere assertions of friendship and the discussion of minor questions on either side only serve to obscure the vital issue which some day must be squarely met. A question of international duty should never be encumbered by the possible consequences of a right decision."

12,500 AT AMERICAN'S FREE OUTING

Boys can be the most tormenting things.

Mrs. Thompson, who came with us yesterday to Nantasket Beach and Moxieland, and the Polar Bears and everything, was sitting out on the back porch of the second story of the good ship Rose Standish just clear of Rowe's Wharf, holding the twins on her capacious lap and with little Rosemary beside her on a camp stool, when young Jack Thompson exploded a bright idea.

"Gee, Ma," said Jack, "what if a German submarine should attack us right now. Gee!"

Mrs. Thompson dropped the twins, who immediately began to cry, and grabbed Master Jack by the left ear.

"John Henry Arthur William Thompson," she said, "you climb right onto that camp stool this minute and don't you let me hear one word out of you until we reach the beach. Where you get such ideas [illegible] I'm sure I don't know. You never get them from me. You grow more like your father every day you live. Here we are, all of us, [illegible] and content and happy, and your sisters behaving like the little angels they are (Rosemary! What have I told you about not chewing gum?) and you have to come along [illegible] German submarines at us! If a submarine does come for us I [illegible] I don't hope it gets you and eats you! Now, behave!"

A GLORIOUS DAY.

And John Henry Arthur William [illegible] a [illegible]-year-old pirate as ever sailed in peaceful waters, sat perfectly still for three minutes.

It was a great and glorious day.

It was one of the greatest days in the history of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company.

It was one of the greatest days in the history of Paragon Park.

It was one of the greatest days in the history of Moxie.

It was one of the greatest days in the history of the [illegible] AMERICAN.

It [illegible] to think of it, but [illegible] for an [illegible] everybody had romped about the [illegible] and in the Atlantic Ocean and had seen everything worth seeing that anybody cared to see. Then it rained, as usual, but only for sixty minutes, and [illegible] who cared.

Such official figures as are obtainable today indicate that the AMERICAN'S Mothers' Day excursion [illegible] children, of course, attracted and [illegible] in the neighborhood of [illegible] people, carried them away from Rowe's Wharf at various hours in the [illegible] expectant and happy, and brought them home again in the late afternoon happy, tired and contented.

CAME FROM EVERYWHERE.

You should have seen them.

They came from every corner of greater Boston.

They were well dressed, wholesome, well mannered and American. It was an honor to play the host to them, and when the day's fun was over the AMERICAN was as happy as the happiest of its guests.

And that tells the story.

Ma and the kiddies began to arrive at Rowe's Wharf soon after 7.30 o'clock in the morning, almost two hours before the time set for the departure of the first boat. After that, mothers and children flowed in upon the wharf in ever-increasing tides. The mothers were all as [illegible] mothers, the most wonderful people in the world and the best, patient and loving and kind, and the children were pretty much alike, too.

The Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company had set apart four boats exclusively for our excursionists, the Nantasket, the Old Colony, the Mayflower and the South Shore, but when it became apparent that even this splendid service would not care for all who came it was arranged to take many "in between times" on the Rose Standish.

NOT AN IDLE MINUTE.

There wasn't an idle minute for anybody. On the way down, bright and lively children discovered and pointed out the wonders of the harbor.

"Sakes alive! How do the kids do it?" Just this minute you are looking at them, right here in front of you, and just as quick as that seemed like they have peeled off everything except what [illegible] used to call their regimentals and are bobbing around in the ocean.

And while all this was going on Ma was opening the baskets and the boxes back there on that broad and generous porch. (See! there she is now [illegible] at [illegible]. THAT'S Ma [illegible].) [illegible] I guess she [illegible] getting the eatables ready.

And after that everybody [illegible] over to Paragon Park to see the shows and everything, and laugh like [illegible] crickets! How everybody [illegible] when the the eight Polar bears of Herr Alber climbed to the top of a [illegible] and then shot the chutes straight down into the water of the lagoon [illegible] splash!

And you had all the Moxie you could drink. Ooh! but it was [illegible] and [illegible] saw the ducks and geese and swans and the monkeys and the parrots and the penny-in-the-slot things and [illegible] pretty soon it was time to take the boat again for a glorious ride back to town. And when are they going to do it again, Mister?"

[illegible] incomplete report to say the last and the best for it, but details are obtainable from almost any ten-year-old in the neighborhood.

Careful consideration of all the records in the case shows that everybody had a delightful time, that everything moved like clockwork and that not so much as one little boy or little girl suffered an injury of even a minor character.

For all of which great credit is due to General Manager Frederick L. Lane of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company and to every member of Mr. Lane's highly efficient staff.

Nobody connected with the AMERICAN worked any harder or was a [illegible] more alert than Mr. Lane in the interest of the mothers and children. The General Manager was wherever he should have been, generally a minute or two ahead of time. Among the other gentlemen of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company who rendered whole-hearted assistance like unto his own may be mentioned Mr. Edwin C. Briggs, assistant to the General Manager; Mr. Thomas Griffin, Mr. Lane's secretary; Mr. Joseph Cobb, the wharf agent at Nantasket, and Mr. David C. Purdy of the engineering staff.

Honorable mention and, to tell the truth, much more, is likewise due Mr. George A. Dodge, who once again threw wide open to the AMERICAN and [illegible] members of the AMERICAN family the gates of alluring, attractive and amazing Paragon Park. Young Mr. Harry Dodge was on hand in person, together with Assistant Manager [illegible]. [illegible] The [illegible] of the greatest amusement parks [illegible] New England seaboard were enjoyed to the full.

The Moxie Company—thanks to the personal interest of Vice-President [illegible] M. Archer—had a generous treat for everybody. No less than [illegible] cases of Moxie were sent to the Park. With them came 25,000 individual drinking cups. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the last of the 25,000 cups had been used. A few cases of America's favorite tonic drink remained, however, and these were disposed of before the last excursion boat left for the city.

A Moxie crew of eleven men was in charge of Ira L. Adams, the Moxie representative on the South Shore. With Ira were "Stubby" Norton, "Jim" Penney, George [illegible], Harold Hubbs, Con Devon, William Wier, Harry Wright, Chester Band, Frank McFarland, "Jim" Smith and William Reading. Miss Elsie Foster and Mrs. Cora [illegible] distributed thousands of Moxie fans.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

OESCHGER HURLS A NO-HIT GAME

PROVIDENCE, July 15.—Oeschger, the former Philadelphia National pitcher who was obtained from Manager Moran on an optional agreement, pitched a no-hit, no-run game for Providence against Toronto in the International League series. Only 27 batsmen faced him and but one man reached first, Luque, the Cuban, drawing the only pass in the ninth.

Real Pitchers' Battle.

CEDAR RAPIDS, [illegible] July [illegible] — Pitchers Seibold of Cedar Rapids and Garrett of Mason City divided honors in a 16-inning, scoreless pitchers' battle in the Central Association game here. Seibold allowed eight hits. Garrett [illegible] his [illegible] and did not issue a single pass throughout the game. In addition he [illegible] men [illegible] fanned six.

"THE RABBIT'S" COLUMN By Walter J. Maranville Shortstop of the Braves

Rip Hagerman, the Cleveland Club's joke batter, is now two seasons ahead in his hitting. In 1914 Hagerman made one hit, a double, in sixty-one times at bat, for a mark of .016, fanned forty-one times.

Rip made his 1915 hit some weeks ago, a single to left off Hamilton. On Sunday the second time up he got his 1916 hit with a single, and on his third trip to the plate he grabbed his 1917 hit with a smashing long double to the bleachers in left centre. It would have been a homer for Ty Cobb.

With Sunday's hits Rip will be able to rest upon his laurels, in a batting way, until the 1918 season.

Nemo Leibold, who has just been secured by the White Sox, is back with his old pal again. When Ray Schalk broke into the Milwaukee Brewers three years ago Nemo was holding down an outfield job. They were the tiniest kids that had been seen in the American Association for years. And they immediately became great pals. There isn't much difference in size. Schalk now is the star catcher of the White Sox and Nemo joined the club last week.

Following is Charles A. Comiskey's answer to the query, "What do you think of Rowland as a major league leader?"

"There are several qualities that a man needs most nowadays in the big leagues, and all these seem to be mingled in Clarence Rowland. He has the good sense and diplomacy to work with his players and gain their best effort. He knows a ball player's ability about as well as any other manager in the business, and it is doubtful whether any one excels him in this respect. He knows how to manoeuvre his men on the field in the heat of battle to get the best results, and it takes a man who knows baseball to do that.

"Rowland outguessed his opponents and perhaps that's why they started those stories about signal stealing. You have to hand it to the fellow who can go out and get signals legitimately and do it so cleverly that he is accused of using a 'buzzer.'

"Yes, I had my eye on Clarence a long time and was watching his work closely. He sent me some mighty good ball players and recommended some I wish I had signed. He is just the man I wanted and he has vindicated my move in going to the bushes for a leader."

Mordecai Peter Centennial Brown still is doing business at the old stand. Despite his long years of service on the firing line the grizzled three-fingered curve ball master manages to win the majority of his battles. Hurling in the opener of the bargain bill at Chicago the other day, Brownie led his fellow Whales to a 7-2 victory over Kansas City Feds. He fanned three, granted five hits, two of them by Gilmore, and issued but one pass.

Why aren't the athletes skipping 'round the paths as they did in former days? Pat Moran, after studying the subject a few days ago, gave it as his personal opinion that unique conditions, governing various teams to date, have resulted in the temporary death of base running.

"Stealing bases nowadays," said he, "is governed mainly by managerial orders, not by the whims of the individuals. When all the clubs of a league, or nearly all, are hitting at a fairly equal pace, lots of steals, or attempts at steals, are inevitable, for every manager will try to get that much of a small hunch on his adversaries.

"This season the hitting hasn't balanced that way. In each league some of the teams have been batting heavily, others very feebly. The heavy-hitting fellows discard the steals, and trust to their slugging batters to drive the runs around. The weaker-hitting clubs are afraid to risk what few men they succeed in getting down to first base. Instead of taking the chance of losing them by dashes for second they work hard with sacrifices or with hit-and-run plays to complete the circuit.

"A man like Cobb goes ahead stealing bases under any sort of conditions, because he can nearly always get away with it, and thus be in position to help his team, whether it is batting hard or lightly. But with the average player, whose chance of making a successful steal is so much less than that of Cobb, the situation is pretty nearly the reverse.

CARRIGAN WANTS BETTER RESULTS

CLEVELAND, July 15.—Manager Bill Carrigan of the Red Sox is keenly disappointed over the failure of his warriors to do better than bust even with Lee Fohl's meek outfit of so-called Indians in the battling transpiring thus far this trip.

The home member, though down at the bottom tied with the Athletics, has made it an even split in four settos, and Joe Wood and "Dutch" Leonard, who between them probably draw as much kale as every hurler on Fohl's staff, are the Bostonians coming to grief. So, no wonder Carrigan is peeved.

Nevertheless the skipper of the Red Sox states that his entry is a positive pennant winner.

"Yes, I was worried for a while as my club played very bad ball for some six weeks or two [illegible]," declared Carrigan to the AMERICAN correspondent this morning. "But we started hitting up [illegible] [illegible] and I'm sincere when I state that in my opinion neither Chicago nor Detroit has a chance to head us off."

Shore or Foster will do the heavy work for the Red Sox today. It is "Rip" Hagerman's turn to work for the Indians.

HUGHES AGAIN TO START GAME

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

Although the Pirates are to be here today and tomorrow, there will be no more double-headers between the two clubs until the Pirates come again. Then, on August 21, the game which was called yesterday on account of rain by Umpire Rigler will be worked off in a bargain day matinee.

There will be one game today, starting at 3:15. Quite likely the same pitchers that started the fiasco yesterday will be found in the box this afternoon. Hughes was pitching for the Braves and Cooper, the left-hander, was working for the Pirates when festivities were halted.

Both managers doubtless welcomed the postponement yesterday. Both were doubtless quite willing to give their pitchers another day's rest. The Braves have two double-headers with the Cincinnati Reds pending. Probably these will be played on Saturday and Monday.

They were playing the last half of the second inning yesterday when the rain came down and forced the umpire to call a halt. No runs had been scored, but Schmidt, the first man up for the Braves, had started with a [illegible] and was on second with none out and Smith at bat when the rain came.

Kramer Again Beats Goullet in Match

NEWARK, July 15. — Whatever chance Alfred Goullet, the Australian, has of defeating Frank L. Kramer, the American champion, in open competition, he is totally at the Yankee's mercy in a match race. This was shown at the velodrome when Kramer lowered his colors in two straight heats of a two thirds mile match race. It was the sixth straight time that Kramer has won over Goullet in match races, while Goullet has not won a match heat from Kramer in more than two years.

GALLANT HOPES TO BEAT MATTY ON 3D TRY

By JACK CONWAY.

IF you don't succeed the first time, do not give up the ship, but instead keep right on trying. Gilbert Gallant, Chelsea's aggressive and hard hitting lightweight, made this statement as he started his training stunts today with Mike Glover.

The Chelsea youth is preparing himself for his twelve-round bout with Matty Baldwin, which will be staged at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. Gallant has experienced remarkable success for a youngster when pitted against some of the best lightweights in the country. He has won most of his important bouts, but he has always run into a snag when he entered a ring with Baldwin.

The veteran Charlestown lightweight has always seemed to have a little something on Gallant and has received two decisions over him. One of these verdicts was a very questionable one, but it nevertheless is printed in the record books, and that is what makes champions.

GALLANT believes that he will be able to dispose of his rival next Tuesday night. If he has the best of the going he will be given the decision, as Billy Roche will not be the third man in the ring. "Young" Donahue will probably be selected to referee the match. He is a fearless and competent official and has given satisfaction every time he has refereed a bout in this city. We have had enough referees of the Roche type.

CONFIDENCE is a great asset to a boxer. We believe that "Young" Saylor's explicit confidence in his own ability proved of great aid to him in his recent tussle with Charley White. Before the contest started Saylor not only believed that he would go the distance, but he felt sure that he would win by a wide margin and that he had a grand chance to score a knockout blow. He did not retreat when White started to swing with left and right hand smashes. Instead, he exchanged blows with his famous opponent and tried to send a winning punch to the mark.

ALTHOUGH defeated, White proved he is a great fighter. He is the kind of glove wielder who always gives satisfaction, as he is a terrific puncher and is willing to exchange blows with an opponent at close quarters. Charley, however, did not have anything on Saylor the other night. If White did not have his own referee, the writer believes that Saylor would have been awarded the decision which he fought for so courageously.

THE Atlas A. A. will probably try to arrange for another bout between these two men. It would be a popular move provided Roche is not selected to referee the return contest. A battle between White and Saylor would undoubtedly draw even a bigger crowd than the one which witnessed Sam Langford knock out "Gunboat" Smith here last year.

FRED NOLAN informs us that Dave Powers is looking for new worlds to conquer. Powers is a much improved boxer since he has been in charge of Nolan. Dave would make a fine opponent for "Belgium" Brown, "Young" Jasper or any of the other New England welterweights who are seeking honors in the ring.

Stromboli Wins Suburban Race by Full Length

NEW YORK, July 15.—August Belmont's four-year-old gelding Stromboli won the Suburban Handicap by a length from Sam Jackson, who beat Sharpshooter a neck for the place.

The Belmont horse was 8 to 1 in the betting. Eleven horses ran, but Tophat, Norseking and Tartar fell when Norseking was crowded, falling and carrying the other two horses with him. Norseking broke his leg and had to be shot.

Stromboli waited in behind the pace until they straightened out in the stretch, then wore the leaders down and won cleverly. Sam Jackson was slow to begin, but closed with a terrific rush in the final quarter and dropped into the place when Butwell misjudged the finishing post and pulled Sharpshooter up. For this oversight the stewards fined him $50.

Fireman Leary, World's Series Contestant

J. J. Leary.

If any man doubts the intense interest of Boston and New England fans in baseball affairs, he will do well to step into the office of the AMERICAN'S World's Series Contest Manager and five minutes' observation will prove that the 1915 World's Series games are expected to be the most exciting and thrilling for many a year.

The hundreds of rooters who are candidates in the contest are waiting, with what patience they can muster, for the first vote standing which will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN, July 18.

The vote coupon which appears on Page 2 of the AMERICAN Daily and Sunday is the all-powerful passport which will send twenty-five of New England's most popular fans to see all of the 1915 World's Series games, wherever played, with all expenses paid by the Boston AMERICAN.

Every AMERICAN reader is invited to use this vote coupon—to vote it for some fellow fan.

It may mean the difference between success and failure for some friend of yours who is in the contest, so spread the gospel of "save the vote coupons on Page 2 for your friend" and do your little bit to push some rooter on to victory.

It will be a great thing to be seated down front when the rival league teams are fighting it out for the championship and it will be a still greater thing to be among the party of twenty-five who will travel from city to city in a DE LUXE Pullman train as the guests of the Boston AMERICAN.

A Charlestown rooter who hopes to be among the successful twenty-five is J. J. Leary of Ladder No. 9, Charlestown. He is a member of the Boston Fire Department, of the Knights of Columbus and the Russell Club and his friends are legion and say they are out on the firing line to put him through a winner.

Baseball Notes.

THOUGH THE TYGERS PUNCHED out fifteen safeties, Cobb went hitless. But there was a reason—he was slipped three walks. King Ty turned two of the gifts into runs and also swiped a sack. For 79 frolics the Peach has tallied 87 runs and stolen 58 bases. His 1914 records, in 97 contests, were 69 and 35.

EDDIE COLLINS, WITH 122 RUNS in 152 games, was the A. L.'s best tally-getter in 1914. If Cobb shows the whole route it seems a pipe for him to continue averaging over a run a show and thus getting some 160 or 170 counters.

* * *

WHEN RAY CALDWELL ISN'T traveling on high he's a soft proposition. He yielded the Tygers twelve hits in six rounds, giving way to King Cole. 'Twas the King's first out in some time. He didn't show much.

* * *

SHEEHAN, WHOEVER HE IS, IS the name of C. Mack's newest heaver. After the White Sox drove Joe Bush to cover in five rounds, the Kid appeared. He handed out three blanks and yielded but one hit.

* * *

"RED" FABER'S GAME WASN'T much to brag about. Still, he landed in front. The win raised his season's notch to 16-4. The young star has yet to be flopped in Chicago this Summer.

* * *

CLARENCE ROWLAND CLAIMS "Big Ed" Walsh is ready. The old boy is carded to make his season's bow tomorrow. If by any hook or crook "Big Ed" should prove the wizard of yore, the White Sox's chance to beat out our Red Sox will be increased to an amazing degree.

* * *

FABER STOLE THREE BASSES ON Jack Lapp. That must be a thieving record for pitchers.

JIMMY AUSTIN HANDED WASHington its two runs. By rights the lanky Laudermilk deserved a shut out. As it was he was vanquished in eleven rounds.

BRESNAHAN TO SHAKE UP CUBS

NEW YORK, July 15.—Unless the Cubs recover from their present slump within the next few days. Manager Bresnahan is liable to make a big shakeup in his team, and possibly make a trade or two with other clubs in his effort to keep Chicago in the lead of the National League pennant race.

Until recently the Cubs had been hitting the ball at such a lively clip that they were able to win games even with a crippled and bad pitching staff and one or two weak spots in the defensive play.

Since the opening of the invasion of the East the Cubs have shown a falling off in hitting, and consequently had little chance to win games in which they were unable to stop the other team.

Just what the shakeup might be if Roger decides on such drastic action is not known. However, it is possible he will send Red Murray to one of the outfield jobs, possibly put Zimmerman back on third base, and give McLarry another trial as a second baseman.

If any trading is done it will be with the idea of getting a strong and reliable pitcher to add to the staff, and possibly a star infielder, either for third base or for shortstop. There have been rumors of talked-of trades between the Cubs and Pirates, as well as between the Cubs and Braves, and the Cubs and Reds.

Until the present crisis Bresnahan has kept his young pitchers sitting on the bench most of the time, but if the team loses another game or two he expects to resort to desperate measures and give his young athletes a chance.

R. N. Williams Loses in Coast Tennis Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—The last member of the Eastern tennis quartet which entered the Panama-Pacific singles tennis championships was eliminated in the person of National Champion R. Norris Williams 2d. The Harvard star fell before the prowess of Clarence J. Griffin, Pacific coast player. Griffin defeated Williams in three sets at 6—3, 5—7, 6—1.

It was evident to those who watched the match that Williams was perceptibly weakened by his hard match with Lindley Murray. In the last set the Easterner made a sorry showing.

Although the East has been eliminated from the singles play, Church and Mathey, the Princeton pair, are still to be considered for final doubles honors.

McRae Wins Decision Ovr Johnny Noonan

GLOUCESTER, July 15.—Howard McRae of Cambridge was awarded the decision over Johnny Noonan of Dorchester after twelve rounds of fast milling at the Lenox Club. Young Jellows of Lowell knocked out Jesse Silva of this city in the second of a six-round bout, and the Syrian Kid put Young Myett away in the third of the four-round curtain raiser.

Tornado Stops Game.

DECATUR, Ill., July 15.—Members of the Decatur and Rockford clubs of the Three I League rescued a score of persons, buried when, just as the game started, a miniature tornado blew off the roof of the grandstand. None of the spectators was seriously injured. The grandstand was wrecked.

Incorporate Newark Feds.

TRENTON, N. J., July 15.—The Newark Federal League Club was incorporated with the Secretary of State. The incorporation apparently discounts the rumors that the club's franchise might be transferred to Reading, Pa.

Browns Sell Harry Hooh.

ST. LOUIS, July 15.—The St. Louis American League baseball club announced it had sold Pitcher Harry Hooh to the Louisville Ky., American Association team.

SIDELIGHTS on SPORTS By A·H·C·Mitchell

UMPIRE-IN-CHIEF RIGLER, in charge of the game at Fenway Park yesterday, should have made the Braves and Pirates continue play, instead of calling off the game, when rain ceased falling and the sun appeared again. It was an injustice to the assembled fans to call it off.

Rigler may or may not have consulted the managers as to the advisability of calling it off. He was seen talking with Manager Clarke of the Pittsburghs and walked with him over to the Boston dugout, where presumably the official heard what the Braves' manager had to say. At any rate, a moment later the announcement calling the game off was made. At the time the sun was shining brightly.

RIGLER alone had full power to call the game or continue it as he saw fit. There was no need for him to consult the wishes of the managers. He should have made the teams play it out. Rule 29 says:

"—— after play has been called by the umpire, he alone shall be the judge as to the fitness of the ground for resuming play after the game has been suspended on account of rain——"

MANAGER BILL CLYMER of the Toronto Club attended the game, or what there was of it, at Fenway Park yesterday. He came to Boston to close the deal for Larry Gilbert and Ted Cather, the Braves' outfielders. Gilbert was ready to make a change of clubs, although sorry to leave the Braves, but Cather hesitated about accompanying Clymer to pastures new. He wanted to be sure that the contract he holds with the Braves will be carried out by the Toronto Club. There is no doubt but that everything will turn out all right, but Cather will stay in Boston until he hears from President Gaffney. Gilbert, however, left last night with Clymer for Providence, where the Maple Leafs meet the Grays in a series.

THEY say that per orders from President Johnson the American League pitchers will be forced to cut out the little cakewalk many of them indulge in between pitches. This move is made to speed up the game.

Joe Wood is accused of being one of the worst offenders in this respect. Joe, no doubt, takes his time in the box but there are others who seem to need the little pause for reflection.

In the National League the other day Umpire Klem made Pitcher Filbert Pierce of the Cubs abolish his walk around the rubber and now Filbert claims he has lost much of his effectiveness.

NO doubt this has been a disastrous season for some of the small leagues and there are a few clubs in the major organizations who are losing money. But baseball is such, as far as the big leagues are concerned, that the moment a club "gets going" a financial loser may be turned into a winner. For example.

The Brooklyn Club up to a short time ago had not been doing very well from a box office point of view. Suddenly they began to win games of ball. Note the result. More than 55,000 fans saw the games at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, last week. The paid attendance on Monday was 14,000, on Tuesday 7,100, on Wednesday 6,000, on Friday 3,500 and on Saturday 25,000.

These figures constitute a record for that park for one week and they prove that the Brooklyn fans have "gone crazy" over the team managed by the fat man. If the Dodgers keep up their phenomenal playing for the rest of the season the profits will be very juicy.

SOMETIMES a club can be a money-winner even though it does not enjoy a berth among the leaders of its league. The Washington Club of the American League played six games at Fenway Park in three days last week and drew more than 41,000 spectators because the Red Sox were enjoying a spurt and were close to first place.

The Senators jumped to Chicago and met the White Sox, league leaders. The opening game on Friday attracted 10,000. On Saturday 15,000 attended the game, while on Sunday 25,000 sat in for a double-header. Thus in six days the Washingtons played to 91,000 in Boston and Chicago and the owners of the club banked a tidy sum of money.

IN Boston this year the Red Sox have had the advantage, financially, over the Braves. This is because Lannin's team is up fighting for the lead while the Braves are in the cellar.

But it would only take a week of winning to put the Braves right on the map, financially and otherwise.

If the Braves could start their long-promised climb right now the new park, which is to open in August, would be taxed to hold the crowds—and the seating capacity of the new park will be 45,000.

SOME baseball experts hold to the idea that if there are two clubs in a big league city both clubs benefit by a winning streak on the part of either club, that is to say, if the Red Sox are out in front the Braves will benefit by the added interest in the national game. The writer does not agree with this view. The Braves are not getting the crowds even though the Red Sox are up in the front of the race. The Braves must create the interest for themselves. They must get a winning streak to get the money.

RESOLUTE WINS BY LESS THAN MINUTE

NEW YORK, July 15.—In the second of the new trials off Sandy Hook to select a defender to meet Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV., the yacht Resolute defeated the Vanitie by 52 seconds corrected time. The race was run over a thirty-mile triangular course. The Vanitie showed a greatly improved race from her performance of Tuesday when over the same course she was defeated by the Resolute by four minutes and 16 seconds actual time. The Vanitie was never headed and led all the way in a light breeze, crossing the line 19 seconds ahead of the Resolute.

The two yachts will race again today in the last of the trials.

Training Without a Trainer.

There are lots of young men who want to take proper exercise, but THINK they can't. They may, like Jess Willard did at first, live in hall bedrooms in boarding houses where punching bags and wall exercisers are barred.

How Willard faced and overcome this problem forms the subject of tomorrow's chapter of his autobiography.

It will be mighty useful for the man or the boy who lives in one room in a city.

DIDIER BREAKS COLLARBONE AND LOSES

Victor Linart of Belgium won the special match race against Leon Didier of France at the Revere track when Didier fell in the sixteenth mile and broke his collarbone. Didier was leading at the time of his accident and by the speed he was showing was the favorite of the large crowd to win the race.

Linart rode to the twentieth mile and when the judges realized that Didier was through they called the race. Linart completed the distance in 27m. 53 2-5s.

The race was a hummer and so was the crowd. All the seats were sold and many bought tickets only to be turned away by the police, who took a hand in the management of the mass and refused to allow the gates to be open to admit any more, fearing there might be an accident.

The race caused much speculation among the followers, but many were of the belief that Didier would be Linart's master in the event. When things looked best for Didier the crash came. He had a comfortable lead at the sixteenth mile when his back tire burst. He lost his motor and when going at a fast clip fell from his wheel and slid to the bowl.

He could not resume his riding, and when examined by the doctors it was found he had sustained a fractured clavicle. Linart was not taking any chances with the $1,000 purse and kept up his hot pace until the twentieth mile, when he was declared a winner and called from the track.

AWAIT DECISION IN $116,000 LOVE SUIT

PORTLAND, Me., July 15.—Arguments were concluded in the Maine law court in the breach of promise suit of Elizabeth Garmong, formerly of Des Moines, Ia., against John B. Henderson, millionaire clubman of Washington, D. C., son of a former Speaker of the House of Representatives, in which she was given a verdict of $116,000, in the Bangor court in January, the largest "love suit" award ever made in a New England State. The decision is expected by Friday.

Appeal from the $116,000 award was made on four points of law. The suit was for $250,000. Chief Justice Savage allowed each side one hour and fifteen minutes for argument. Attorney L. B. Deasy of Bar Harbor closed his argument for the defence and was followed by Creed M. Fulton of Washington, D. C., for the plaintiff.

Attorney Deasy attempted to impeach the character of Miss Garmong and argued on the three separate actions she had started in Iowa to prosecute Dr. Roscoe D. Smith.

Arguing for Miss Garmong, Attorney Fulton reviewed a large amount of the testimony in detail.

SAYS MINIMUM WAGE RULE IS ILLEGAL

Coincident with the decree of the Minimum Wage Commission of Massachusetts, setting a minimum of $6 for beginners and $8 for experienced help in laundries, Attorney-General Atwill rendered a decision, made public today, declaring a similar decree of the commission in regard to candy workers illegal.

The report is believed, however, to cover only the ruling of the board in regard to candy factories, inasmuch as the Attorney-General finds that the candy wage board's organization is illegal.

The candy decree was to have become effective October 1. The minimum wage for laundry workers is set for Sepetember 1.

According to the attorney, when the provisions for the organization of the candy board were about half carried out and amendment was made, making it necessary to advertise nominations for membership. This requirement, Mr. Atwill holds, was not complied with.

A new candy-wage board is expected to be organized, probably with the same membership after lapse of the ten days necessary for advertisement, which will be able to utilize the reports of the original board. The minimum wage ruling, which is declared illegal was decreed, however, not by the candy factory board, but by the Minimum Wage Commission.

The minimum laundry wage decree provides that no experienced female of ordinary ability shall be employed at less than 8 a week. No female employee shall be considered inexperienced who had been employed for a year.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular at the start in New York with railroads the weakest group. But the initial price range was narrow. War order issues were firm and most of them made good gains. Baldwin Locomotive and Bethlehem were strong issues. Trading was active at the opening, but that pace was not long maintained. Dealings continued to be largely professional. It is said that public sentiment is bullish, but this is not reflected by an increase in speculation by outsiders. It seems to be generally believed that the period of unsettlement is not over. It is claimed in some well informed circles that foreign liquidation has been much overestimated, but it has been sufficient to make the average professional trader bearish. It is believed there is a large amount of foreign held stock still to be absorbed, and that offerings from that source are likely to continue for some time to be sufficient to prevent a bull movement in railroads. Regarding the latter, while some are increasing their earnings there are too many others in financial trouble. Too many are in or approaching the reorganization stage to give them favor with investors.

EARLY GAINS AND LOSSES.

At the end of fifteen minutes in New York railroads were weaker and war orders higher. Among gains at that time were American Can ½, American Smelting 1⅛, Atchison ⅛, U. S. Steel ¼, Baldwin 1⅛, Bethlehem 2, Crucible 1, Central Leather ⅜, Studebaker ½, Westinghouse 1¼, Willys-Overland 1⅜ and Western Union ⅜. Declines included Baltimore & Ohio ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, "Katy" ¼, "Mop" ⅛, New Haven ¼, Southern Pacific 1¼, Rock Island ¼ and Goodrich 1.

LOCAL COPPERS QUIET.

Trading in local coppers was quiet. Greene-Cananea advanced 1¼, it being believed that this company will resume dividends in September. This issue and American Zinc were among the most active issues here. Among gains were American Zinc ½, Butte & Superior ¼, East Butte ½, Isle Royale ½, Lake ¼ and Mass. Gas, ex-dividend, ½. Quincy was off ½.

PRICE TREND UNCERTAIN.

The price trend in New York seemed uncertain later. Americans continued weak in London. Foreign exchange rates were steady. The Bank of England rports for the week that its proportion of reserve to liabilities is 17.57 per cent., compared with 17.63 for the previous statement. A local financial publication says:

> "No British loan has been placed here as yet. The difficulty in satisfactorily placing it is shown by the delay. Unless Great Britain places something behind the loan that is fully acceptable she will find that she will be obliged to pay a rate of interest which such a character of loan compels. It is very possible that the enormous cost of the war may force the question of peace earlier than the reports from the field indicate. Some good people are banking on this idea. They see a hope which the man, not in financial touch with the powers, cannot see."

There has been some copper buying of late at 20 cents a pound and the business was both domestic and foreign. But that metal continues quiet. There is more demand for lead, and spelter is bringing high prices. From 23 to 24 cents a pound is being paid for ordinary grades. High grades are quoted at 46.

FINAL REVIEW OF G. A. R. PLANNED

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Fifty years ago the victorious Union armies, fresh from the battlefields of the Civil War and the surrender at Appomattox, marched down Pennsylvania avenue.

It was the grand review of the legions of Grant and Sherman, of Meade and Sheridan, and the other famous Union commanders. President Johnson and General Grant were in the reviewing stand as the veterans swung past, bearing the battle flags that had flown on a hundred battlefields.

This thrilling pageant will be reproduced as nearly as possible during the forty-ninth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in Washington, September 27 to October 3, according to the announcement made here.

It will be the fiftieth anniversary of the Grand Review. Thousands of the same veterans will again march down Pennsylvania avenue and pass in review before President Wilson and his Cabinet. It will be the last time the veterans will march in Washington, and the last time that hundreds of them will ever again attend an encampment, as these men are fast passing away.

Because of the increasing death rate and the feebleness of the survivors of the great war, it is probable that the Grand Army will never again hold a great encampment after the Washington event.

Life Sentence Once Commuted, Must Return to Prison

Sentenced to State Prison for life for the murder of his wife in East Boston, and released on parole three weeks ago when the Governor's council commuted his sentence to 20 years, Michael J. Kilroy broke the term of his parole and will be returned to life imprisonment.

Kilroy's sentence was commuted after he had served 13 years. Within a week of his release, he became involved in a dispute in a barroom on Main street, Charlestown, and threatened the proprietor, Joseph Thornton, with a revolver. Arrested, Kilroy was fined $50, and in default of payment, was sent to the house of correction for three months.

The district attorney's office announces that after Kilroy serves his term on Deer Island, he will be returned to the state prison.

New Income Tax Ruling Covers Bad Bills and Wages

WASHINGTON, July 15. — Debts arising from unpaid wages, salaries, rents and items of similar taxable income due and payable on or after March 1, 1913, when the income tax became effective, will not be allowed as deductions, says a Treasury ruling unless the income they represent has been included in a gross return of income for the year in which the deduction as a bad debt is sought to be made, or in a previous year, and the debts have been actually ascertained to be worthless and charged off.

Debts payable prior to March 1, 1913, are held to be allowable deductions in the proper year.

CALAMITY AHEAD SEEN BY JAPANESE

HONOLULU, H. I., July 15.—That a great war will be brought about "between the Asiatic and European peoples" if the United States does not treat Japanese fairly in the matter of naturalization is a declaration made by Takao Ozawa, a Honolulu Japanese, in an argument he has filed in Circuit Court in support of his application for naturalization as an American citizen.

Ozawa says the United States will "gain nothing by humiliating the Japanese whom 'Uncle Sam' assisted to become one of the five great Powers." On the other hand, he says, if the Japanese are fairly treated in the matter of naturalization peace will exist forever between Japan and America.

Ozawa says: "Since there is no law prohibiting Japanese from naturalization and there is no Supreme Court decision against Japanese and also there is no so-called 'gentlemen's agreement' between the United States and Japan, and again the term 'white person' was used to include all people except black people, and also, according to the modern color classification, Japanese belong to one of the four white races.

More than $6,000,000 worth of automobiles and motor trucks were exported from the port of New York in April, breaking all previous efforts. The United Kingdom took 551 vehicles, valued at $1,216,091, and all other countries took 2,670 worth $4,838,182, making a total of 3,221, valued at $6,054,273.

In April a year ago the exports from New York were 2,005 cars of an aggregate value of $1,533,305—about one-fourth of this year's April shipments.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

The Real Purpose of Sincere Progressives

It Is NOT to Elect Progressive Politicians to Office, We Would Respectfully Say to the Honorable Charles E. Burbank, but to Compel the ENACTMENT OF PROGRESSIVE POLICIES. Republican Machine and Republican Legislature Are Still Steered by "the Gang," as Mr. Bird Described Them, and "the Gang" Will Dictate This Year's Republican Platform.

FORMER PROGRESSIVE SENATOR BURBANK has probably now learned the sense in which silence is golden. That term was undoubtedly originated by some gentleman who had a bad cause and who was shrewd enough to anticipate the danger of talking, or had suffered the consequences of talking about a bad cause.

Mr. Burbank, who was last year an enthusiastic Progressive, and before he became a Progressive was a Socialist and still avows socialistic principles, has decided to join the stand-pat Republican organization, and aspires to become one of its standard bearers.

He is not contented with this apostasy to the Progressive party, but seeks to carry with him as many Progressives as he can influence. Whether this is for the purpose of making his accession valuable to the Republican leaders as the basis of his hope for a nomination for Lieutenant-Governor at their hands it is not necessary to discuss. That he is not a disinterested advocate of the espousal of stand-pat Republicanism he will himself admit. Indeed, he does not have to admit it; it is quite apparent from his candidacy for the second highest place on the Republican ticket.

The AMERICAN proposes to assume that Mr. Burbank is as important a person as the Republican stand-pat leaders would like to have him considered. But the real importance of his desertion from the Progressive cause lies in the fact that he has attempted to formulate the reasons which should lead Progressives to support the Republican ticket this year.

The AMERICAN asked him recently several questions, to which he has made an elaborate reply. The AMERICAN intends to discuss Mr. Burbank's reply in due course, not because Mr. Burbank is an important person, but because he attempts to state the ground on which Progressives ought to join the Republican party.

Mr. Hale, Mr. Burbank's Progressive leader, stated the other day that he should support Governor Walsh if he had to choose between the Governor and Mr. McCall and Mr. Cushing, because Governor Walsh's principles, avowed and practiced, were nearer the principles of the Progressive party than were the principles of either of the other gentlemen. This was a hard blow to Mr. Burbank, because Mr. Hale occupied a superior position to that of Mr. Burbank in the Progressive party, and because Mr. Burbank knew that Mr. Hale told the truth.

Mr. Burbank could not reply to the force of Mr. Hale's statement. He could only "confess and avoid," as the lawyers say. In his reply to the Hale statement Mr. Burbank admits that the Republican party is still unregenerate, still unprogressive, still reactionary, still stand-pat, and then he asks this childish question:

> But three years ago the Progressives came out of the Republican party because their influence while in it could not keep it progressive. They stood at Armageddon in 1912 because the reactionary Republicans controlled the party, both in Massachusetts and in the national convention. At the high tide of Theodore Roosevelt's power he and his fellow-Progressives could not control the Republican party. That is why they left the Republican party. What man, WHO HAS NOT A PERSONAL AXE TO GRIND, can be absurd enough to claim that what Progressives, fired by the leadership of Roosevelt and excited almost to religious fervor by one of those extraordinary waves of sentiment which now and then arises in our great ocean of public opinion like a tidal wave, were unable to accomplish in the Republican party, they can now accomplish by straggling back, acknowledging their error, cowed, repentant, disorganized and helpless?

It is notable that the disinterested members of the Progressive party appreciate the folly of such advice. They probably understand that it is not Mr. Burbank's heart that is speaking, BUT HIS AMBITION. He pretends that he hopes to make the Republican party progressive, but he does NOT say what he will do IF HE FAILS TO SECURE A PROGRESSIVE PLATFORM FROM THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION which shall bind the Republican members of the Legislature to enact into law the Progressive policies.

He probably will admit the notorious fact that the Legislature this year, being more strongly Republican, was more reactionary than it has been in five years. If he does not admit it, let him ponder over the excoriation that this stand-pat Republican Legislature has received from the Boston Advertiser, a newspaper owned and controlled by the Progressive leader, Charles Sumner Bird, and his son.

The AMERICAN also reminds him that when Mr. Bird saw the crowd that gathered at the last Republican convention, where Calvin Coolidge, the President of the Republican Senate, the worst that has sat in years, read the platform, and Senator Lodge delivered the keynote address, he declared that the song which these Republicans ought to sing was "Hail, hail; the gang's all here!" That was a prophetic statement by the Progressive leader, and his prophecy was fulfilled in the last stand-pat Republican Legislature. His newspaper attack upon the stand-pat Republican Legislature shows where he stands.

The AMERICAN would like to see the Republican party redeemed by the Progressives. The AMERICAN has never supported the Democratic party through thick and thin. It has reserved the right to criticise Democrats as freely as Republicans, but it supports progressive men whenever and wherever it finds them, as all true Progressives ought to do. If Mr. Burbank were a true Progressive, and if he were to support the candidate who has earned the right to be considered the most progressive, he knows in his heart that this man would be Governor Walsh.

If Mr. Burbank really wanted to convert the Republican party to Progressivism he would not advocate the unconditional surrender of the Progressives, but their continued defiance of stand-patism wherever they find it. The only means by which the Republican party can be made to slough off its reactionary leadership and adopt Progressive policies is by demonstrating that stand-patism cannot win. The reactionary politician never has any principle or fixed policy except to win office and its emoluments. He will not long play a losing game, and when he is thoroughly convinced that by standing pat he is doomed to stay out of power he will either permit the Republican party to be reorganized on sounder principles or permit it to die.

While the Progressives remain organized and hold the balance of power they compel one or the other of the two parties to remain progressive. In that way the Progressives are carrying out their real purpose, which is not to elect Progressive politicians to office, but to compel the enactment of Progressive policies.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

They Would Try Anything Once

THERE was a man who fancied that by driving good and fast
He'd get his car across the track before the train came past.
He'd miss the engine by an inch, and make the train hands sore.
There was a man who fancied this; there isn't any more.

THERE was a man who thought that he could win a little bet
By quenching in some gasoline a lighted cigarette.
He thought the fluid, being wet, would douse the flame somehow.
There was a man who reasoned thus. He is not with us now.

THERE was a man who, to his friends, would frequently declare
That he would strangle with his hands a hungry grizzly bear.
He spoke of hungry grizzlies with a fascinating sneer.
A man like this there was, but now he's gone away from here.

Enough

I could not store up money like the busy bee hoards honey. I would not want the fortune that has bowed down old John D. I should not like to worry at each passing Wall Street flurry in the fear the drop in prices was annihilating me.

My wants are very meagre. I am not the least bit eager to have to lease whole warehouses to keep my baled long green. It quite would satisfy me if at present I had by me the sum they pay big actors for appearing on the screen.

Inasmuch as I don't hanker to be J. P. Morgan's banker, and my bills are all so modest that a million would defray 'em, I would take what they are getting. I would find it quite upsetting if some accident should get me what producers say they pay 'em.

Poor Little Rich Men

The poor are not the only people who are compelled to suffer hardships. Because of a caddy strike at Myopia the other day H. C. Frick and several other gentlemen had to carry their golf clubs all the way around the five-mile course.

Very Likely

And when it all (the war situation) becomes so acute and fearful as no longer to be borne, then there will be a movement for peace worth talking about.—The astute Evening Post.

What Is Good Housekeeping?

It's the Best Magazine for the Woman in the Home

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING is the best household magazine. It is the one best magazine essential to the wife, the mother. Get it and see for yourself.

The July issue is now on sale.

The features offered are worth many times fifteen cents. One feature is "Twilight Sleep," by Charlotte Teller. You doubtless have heard about the new method employed in the birth of children; therefore read about it.

Girls should read the series of short articles by Virginia Blair telling of "Adventures of Girlhood." This month it's the "Flaming Dragon," telling of the heartache that creeps into a girl's heart when she sees the daughter of her next-door neighbor dressed better, or, if she is a working girl, sees the girl at the next machine putting on airs. Read the article and learn a lesson from it.

Every child likes a Kewpie doll—fat, rosy and healthy-looking. The Kewpies play antics in Good Housekeeping that will make the little ones laugh with delight. The illustrations and poetry will keep the young ones busy for hours.

If there is one thing that bothers mothers it is "Your Daughter's Career." Rose Young in her article may start your daughter in selecting the right career.

Then there is an article by Dr. Woods Hutchinson on "The Community Care of Children." An interesting revival of an old Greek idea. The government takes care of chickens, pigs and cows. Why shouldn't the community take care of its children? The article is instructive.

For the woman who has leisure for story-reading after her day's work there is "The Dual Alliance," "Peggy-Mary's Paradox," "Women Don't Understand Things," "The Passing of the Stork," "The Field That Was Ripe," "Togo Appeases Bill Collectors—a Very Fascinating Job for Togo." "Mirandy on Votes for Women," by Dorothy Dix, is amusing.

The food problem bothers women. Good Housekeeping Magazine gives helpful suggestions to the woman who has unexpected company—recipes that are worth while.

Dr. Harvey Wiley, famous as a government expert on pure food, has a regular department in Good Housekeeping. He answers questions and gives facts, with illustrations, of food fit for human consumption.

Fashions, discoveries for the housekeeper, everything worth while, is in Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Mysteries of Electricity

It Flies Through Aerial Lines with the Speed of Light, but It Is Retarded in Ocean Cables

By Garrett P. Serviss

"WHAT is the approximate time for the "click" of a telegraph key to travel from Boston to San Francisco on a direct wire?—E. T. C.

A very small fraction of a second, but the precise time cannot be fixed, owing to uncertainty as to the existence, and amount, of retardation, which, in its turn, may vary with circumstances. The speed of electricity is supposed to be the same as that of light, 186,000 miles per second, and if there were no retardation on a direct, aerial wire—(and there is certainly very little)—the signal should cross the continent in about one-sixtieth of a second.

On submarine cables the retardation is much more pronounced. Professor Fleming Jenkin found, in experimenting with an Atlantic cable, that one-fifth of a second elapsed after contact had been made at one end before any effect was perceived at the other, and then the received current gradually increased in strength during about three seconds, after which it died away. This retardation is due to the fact that before a signal can be sent to the other end of a long cable enough electricity must flow into the cable to produce a considerable "potential" (power of doing electric work), and this requires an appreciable time, sometimes amounting to several seconds.

This phenomenon is one of the greatest practical difficulties encountered in ocean telegraphy, but it has been fairly well overcome by various devices.

Many years ago Wheatstone measured, as he supposed, the velocity of electricity, which he estimated to be 288,000 miles per second, or more than 100,000 miles greater than the velocity of light. This estimate is still often quoted, but it was founded on a mistake. It has been shown that what Wheatstone really measured was not the velocity of electricity, but the time taken by a certain small quantity of electricity to flow through a conductor. Professor Silvanus Thompson says that there is no definite assignable velocity of electricity.

In aerial wires "the velocity of propagation of any rapid electrical vibration is equal to the velocity of light, but in the case of slow vibrations, like those of telephonic sounds being sent through land lines, or cables, the velocity may be much less."

Electricity holds many secrets which may some day lead to marvelous revelations. Like light, it is transmitted through the ether, and some men of science have believed it to be, itself, a form of the ether. The ether is regarded as something different from matter, and yet its vibrations, in the shape of light and electricity, affect matter. Evidently the two things, ether and matter, are not so different that they cannot and do not react upon each other. They might, in their relations, be likened to body and spirit. As the spirit, or soul, is supposed to be independent of the material limitations of the body, although it acts and manifests itself through the body, so the ether appears to be free of the ordinary marks of materiality, since we cannot detect it in any way except through what seem to be its effects upon material bodies.

The fact is that science has never been able directly to demonstrate the existence of the ether, any more than theology has been able directly to demonstrate the existence of the soul.
